Thompson, Heckman win

By ROBERT H. NELLIS

Niches in political history were made Tuesday in Lee County when two Democrats were elected to public office and one of them as county treasurer for the first time since the county was created in 1839.

It's a new thing for women to be elected to public office, but Sharon Thompson did not get this first-time niche for being elected as a woman as she did for being a Democrat.

A woman, Mrs. Albert Hillison, was elected treasurer in 1962.

Michael Heckman, principal of South Central School, is the second Democrat elevated to public office by voters when he won the post from A. Price Barnes, principal Ashton Elementary School, as Superintendent of an Educational Service Region.

Records and memory indicate he was preceded in that office in 1890 by Jay Edwards, who is believed to have been a Democrat.

Surviving the Democratic landslide on Tuesday, which was felt in this solid Republican area as well as nationwide, was State Sen. David Shapiro, Amboy, who captured 56 per cent of the vote in the 37th District to retain his seat by downing, for the second time, Ray Scott, DeKalb, a Democrat.

Shapiro garnered 26,006 votes to 20,556 for Scott.

The state representative race for the 37th District created considerable interest because of the aggressive campaigns conducted by Richard Mautino, Spring Valley, and Donald F. Burke, Dixon.

Burke was the loser, with the two Republicans being elected and with Mautino polling the most votes in the district.

Cumulative voting exists for state representative races, which give a candidate from one to three votes.

The totals, in order of finish are: Mautino, 41,821; Joseph Ebbesen, R-DeKalb, an incumbent, 40,201; Calvin Schuneman, Prophetstown, a Republican challenger, 35,180, and Burke, 30,986.

Mrs. Thompson won her race from Russell Mosher, a Republican opponent.

They were seeking to succeed Donald Stauffer, who did not run for re-election.

In 1970, Stauffer defeated a Democratic challenger, Joseph Grygiel, 6,754 to 4,979.

Mrs. Thompson's margin over Mosher was 4,844 to 4,158.

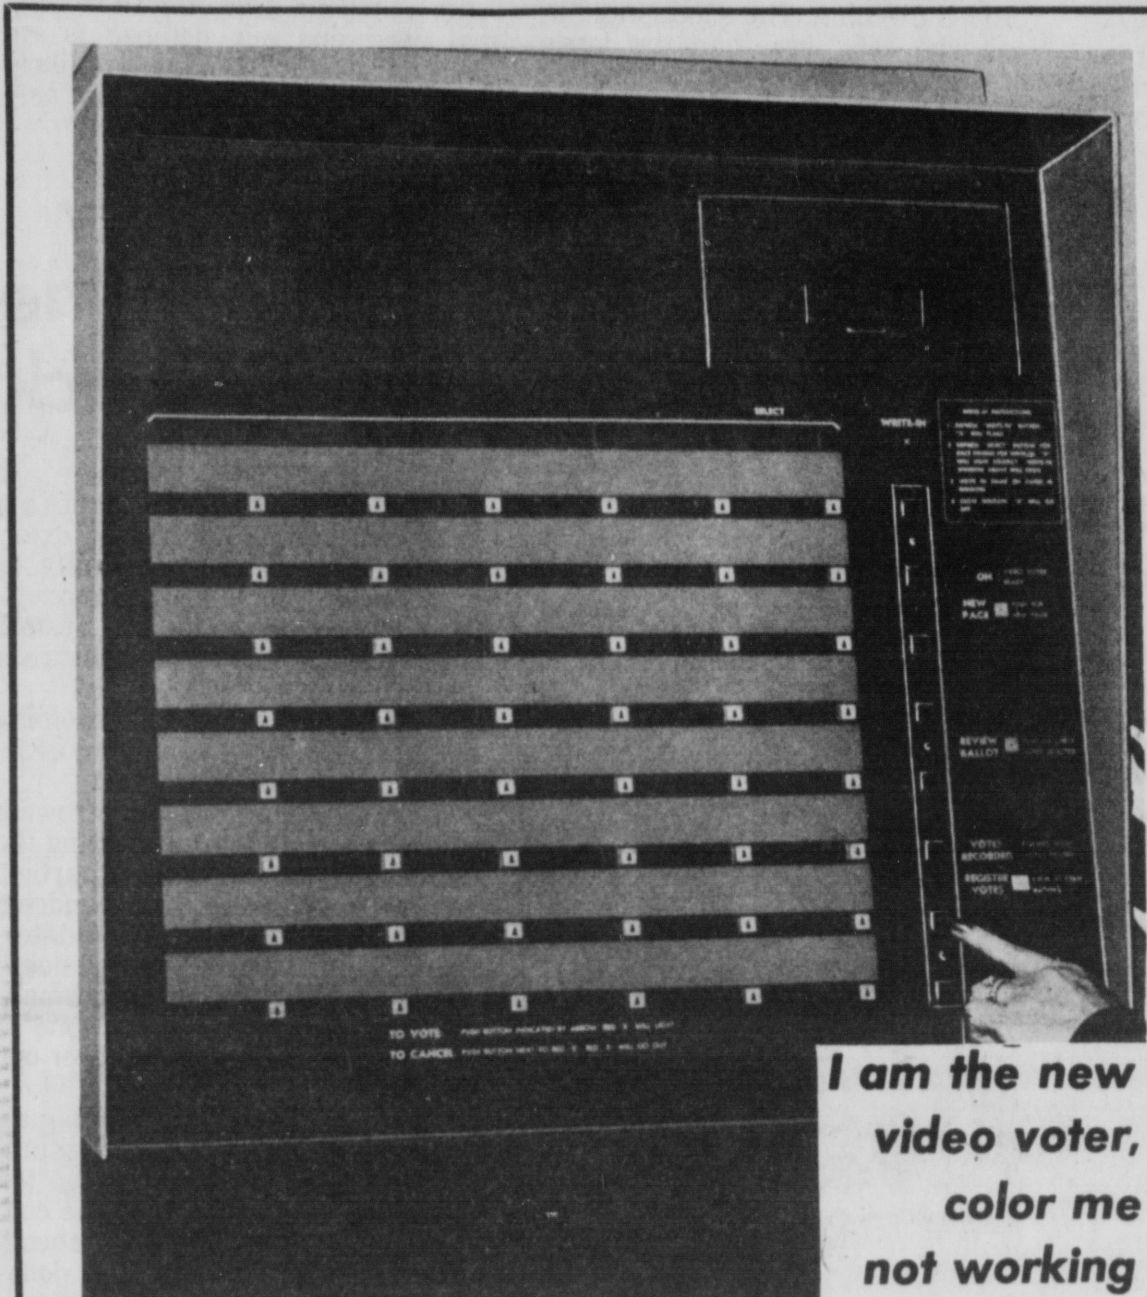

Her campaign manager was James G. Burke, city commissioner, who managed the campaign of the last Democrat to be elected to county office here, Henry S. Dixon, as state's attorney in 1964.

Because of problems with video-voters in some precincts, County Clerk John Stouffer has decided not to release an official vote total. The total will be determined by the canvass of votes in a few days.

Sheriff Ray Nehring and Stouffer were unopposed.

Judging from races which evidenced most interest, the total must be about 9,000 and if this figure is correct, 47 per cent of eligible voters in the county cast ballots in Tuesday's election.

Video voters cause election snarls

By LENNY INGRASSIA

The highly advanced, high-speed electronic voting machines used in Tuesday's election in Lee County turned out to be slow and cumbersome in tabulating votes and in one precinct an electronic brain lost its memory, spoiling at least 130 ballots.

County Clerk John Stouffer said he was disappointed with the results of the machines and said this morning "I couldn't operate another election with confidence using these machines."

The video-voters were purchased by the Lee County Board on a lease arrangement. Under terms of the lease, the county is required to make two payments; one in December of this year, the other in December, 1975.

Dixon 1 was heaviest hit by machine failure at 10:30 a.m. when a tape used to store ballot information failed to operate. Technicians working with the Frank Thorner Co. were unable to remedy the problem and were unsuccessful in recovering any ballots cast before 10:30 a.m.

In an affidavit explaining the loss of tape data, a representative of Terminal Communications Inc., the firm which built the machine, said "The malfunctioning unit was not able to correctly record tape and the counts were lost when power apparently failed following the loss of service. . . I have done everything within my technical capability that I am aware of to try to recover the results from the improperly recorded tape, but without success."

Following the breakdown, paper ballots were put into use at Dixon 1, the last precinct in the county to report its total, at 1:55 a.m. today. Judges from Dixon 1 met with Stouffer and State's Atty. Patrick Ward shortly after 2 a.m. to discuss the inoperation of the machine. Following the meeting, Ward said his office would "look into" the malfunction.

The outcome of one county board race in District 3 could have been changed by the 130 ballots lost, depending on the vote. Robert L. Fichter, who came in fourth in the unofficial count may have defeated opponents Edward Conroy or Paul Hammersmith.

Still another machine difficulty, this one termed human error by Stouffer, surfaced at Dixon 9 and Dixon 10 precincts. Failure to lock down a lid on one machine there accounted for the loss of an undetermined number of votes.

Stouffer explained that no votes could be tabulated while the lid of the machine was not securely fastened. The county clerk referred the matter to Chief Circuit Judge James E. Bales.

Stouffer emphasized that none of the discrepancies experienced with the machines was indicative of misconduct by election judges. "They (the problems) were malfunction of machines or oversight by judges," Stouffer said.

The future use of the machines was expected to be discussed at Tuesday's County Board meeting.

The advance publicity of the machines pinpointed its accuracy and speed in tabulating vote totals. Those totals were expected to be known in all 30 precincts using the machines within one hour after the polls closed.

Instead, the total were slow in coming, reaching the clerk's office between 9 and 11 p.m. Tuesday.

—Vote notes—

Rural fire referendum is rejected

By more than a three-to-one margin voters in the Dixon Rural Fire Protection District turned down a 25-cent tax hike, proposed to offset rising ambulance costs.

The largest margin of defeat was recorded at the Dixon Rural Fire Station, where 498 "no" votes were cast. The breakdown of the three polling places was as follows:

	Yes	No
Dixon Rural	106	498
Nachusa	29	38
Grand Detour	35	122
TOTALS	170	658

The large percentage of negative votes cast in the Dixon area was recorded mainly from Dixon residents who remain in the rural fire district. Alternative action to meet the high cost of ambulance service provided by the department was expected to be discussed at the Nov. 11 meeting of the board of trustees.

Rochelle voters approve change

ROCHELLE — Rochelle candidates for office in the city-commission form of government must now specify which commission post they are seeking as a result of the passing of a referendum in Tuesday's election. Voters cast 1,288 votes for the change with 476 against.

Amendatory veto proposal trails

CHICAGO (AP) — With slightly less than half the vote counted, the proposal to trim the governor's amendatory veto power was trailing.

With 5,283 precincts reporting out of 11,315 there were 615,910 "no" votes and 586,543 in favor of the proposal.

The 1970 Illinois Constitution gave the governor power to return legislation with specific recommendations for change.

With 5,283 precincts reporting out of 11,315 there were 615,910 "no" votes and 586,543 in favor of the proposal.

Tabulations were complete for 8,161 of the state's 11,315 precincts. The figures included 4,011 of 5,463 precincts in Cook County.

Democrats: Nina T. Shepherd, 929,013; Arthur R. Velasquez, 831,600; Robert J. Leitz, 844,966.

Republicans: Timothy W. Swain, 627,549; Russell W. Steger, 597,665; Gardner W. Heidrick, 566,296.

Brooks easily wins re-election

OREGON — Incumbent Sheriff Jerry Brooks won an easy victory over his Democratic opponent by more than a two-to-one margin in Tuesday's election. Brooks unofficial vote tally was 7,923 to Jesse Suter's total of 3,665.

Top vote-getter in Ogle County was Helvie R. Wooding, county clerk, who ran unopposed and received 9,393 votes.

In county board races for District 1, incumbent LaVerne H. Adams led the race with 1,945 votes. Second was Everett Rader with 1,584 and third was Freddie E. Canode with 1,366. Both are incumbents.

District 2, where there was no opposition, incumbents Frank Wright, Daniel Tilton and Robert Hultgren were re-elected. A vacancy in District 2 to fill the unexpired term of James McCaslin was won by Michael P. Alongi, Republican, with 1,096 votes over his opponent, Noel Rainwater, Democrat.

In District 3, Republican Charles Lamb topped the list with 2,134 votes. Fred Fulkers was next with 1,876 votes and third was Clinton Ortiguesen with 1,815 votes tallied. All are incumbents. Democratic candidate Geord Frujn placed fourth with 1,590 votes.

JERRY BROOKS

In District 4, Republicans Charles Finch, Jerry P. Daws and Ernest Hachmeister were seated. Also, Edward Snulle Jr. won the unexpired term of Kenneth Hayes over his Democratic opponent, Lloyd Eichert.

In the consolidation vote for townships, the only issue which won voter approval was the consolidation of Oregon and the west side of Rockvale into one township. The vote was 677 "yes" to 653 "no."

Democrats win control of state general assembly

CHICAGO (AP) — Illinois voters have given Democrats control of the Illinois General Assembly for the first time in nearly four decades, casting out of office two powerful Republican leaders.

W. Robert Blair of Park Forest, House speaker since 1971 and touted by some as a top prospect for governor in 1976, came in last in a four-man race for the three House seats in the 42nd District.

And Edward McBroom of Kankakee, chairman of the influential Senate Appropriations Committee, went down to defeat at the hands of Democrat Jerome Joyce, a 35-year-old farmer from Reddick.

Although reports were incomplete, Democratic strategists predicted early today their party would gain a seven-vote margin of control in the Senate and a 19-vote majority in the House.

Counting continued in three close Senate races.

Former state Sen. Robert Egan was in a close battle with incumbent Republican Sen. Edward Scholl for the seat in the 16th District.

Democrat Vincent Demuzio and GOP Sen. A.C. "Junie" Bartulis were neck-and-neck in the 49th District.

And two Peoria city councilmen, Democrat Daniel (See DEMOCRATS on page 12)

Two Democrats apparent winners in 35th District

Democrats pulled a first in the 35th Legislative District when they apparently elected two Democrats to the Illinois House.

Two incumbents, Harlan Rigney, Red Oak, a Republican, was returned as was Robert Brinkmeier, Freeport, a Democrat.

Fighting for the third seat opened when Merle Anderson, Durand, a Republican, chose not to run again. Democrat Robert Mulcahey, also of Durand, polled 30,958 tallies to 30,325 for Harold Adams, Davis Junction, a Republican.

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

The World Food Conference now meeting in Rome is hearing some off-stage proposals that the United States ban food-and-materials exports to Arab world countries in retaliation for the gouging price of their oil.

The idea's potential is both weaker and stronger than we may think.

For many years the world's food supply increased at about an annual 3 per cent rate. This was nearly twice that of the population growth. But the gouging cost of Arab oil, essential in fertilizers, and a ghastly series of weather disasters have taken their toll.

Since 1954 the United States has spent more than $12 billion on our "Food for Peace" program alone. But in those 20 years more than another billion people have appeared on earth. In fact, there are now more hungry people in the world than when our "Food for Peace" program began.

"Nearly half the human race goes to bed hungry every night," Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz recently told me. And on Oct. 19 the House Agricultural Subcommittee officially stated: "During 1974, over 10 million people will perish of too little food."

The situation looks as grim as when Moses shattered the tablets.

Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie's downfall was partly due to his government's refusal even to admit the existence of a famine in two provinces that caused nearly 100,000 deaths.

Secretary of State Kissinger has just left India. The declining food production there has clearly resulted from government cuts in agriculture's share of the national budget.

Incredibly poor planning leaves the fertilizer plants running at 60 per cent of capacity. Grain surpluses in some regions are not relieving famine in others because of immense snafus in India's distributing system.

It takes only 5 per cent of us Americans to produce enough food so that we can sell grain to the Russians. They use 25 per cent of their population in food production, but do it so badly that they have to buy from the United States.

In South America, in turn, food

Arabs have oil; U.S. has food production is down 6 per cent since 1958; only 5 per cent of the continent's land is cultivated. Venezuela farms, for example, yield an average two bushels of corn per acre. Normally ours produce about 67.

On the retaliation proposals' potentially strong side, I asked the U.S. Department of Commerce for the Arab world figures.

Put your pencil on oil-rich Abu Dhabi, Algeria, Iraq, Kuwait, Libya, Oman, Watar and Saudi Arabia. About 80 per cent of their total imports are from the United States, Canada, Western Europe, Japan and Australia.

The West supplies about 81 per cent of their imported chemicals, pharmaceuticals, machinery, pipe and pumping equipment and other industrial products and at least 70 per cent of their grain imports.

Some buy large quantities of Canadian and Australian grain and other foodstuffs. The United States forwarded in 1974 only 6 per cent of their food and 10 per cent of their grain imports.

However, Saudi Arabia, the world's largest exporter of oil, and several oil sheikdoms have grown increasingly dependent on imports from the United States.

Secretary Butz tells me that our grain sales to the Middle East and Persian Gulf may well surpass $800 million this fiscal year; about twice the grain sales to those areas in fiscal 1973.

He believes the lion's share will be to nine Arab states and will exceed $300 million, including $100 million each to Saudi Arabia and Egypt.

On the weaker side, we cannot be really effective without the cooperation of the other chief oil-consuming countries.

Not until September this year, at Camp David, a full year after the Arab oil embargo torpedoed the economics of Western Europe and Japan, did the representatives of 11 major oil-consuming nations finally agree on sharing and conservation plan to combat future shortages. Even so, they refused to join a U.S. plan to force down Arab oil prices.

There is off-stage talk at the Rome World Food Conference. But economic leverage is a frail straw that is going with the wind.

France and Canada get it together

OTTAWA (LENS)— Pierre Trudeau's warm welcome in Paris last week marked the end of seven years of bleakness between France and Canada.

It took this time to assuage Canadian feelings, and for France's official attitudes to change, after De Gaulle excited Quebec separatists and affronted the Canadian government by shouting the separatist slogan "Vive le Quebec libre" during his visit to Montreal in 1967.

Even this summer, when French immigration officers received without question the four members of the Front for the Liberation of Quebec who had kidnapped the British diplomat James Cross in 1970—and who had since grown bored with exiles in Cuba—some Canadian newspapers angrily demanded that their government should press France to extradite them.

Trudeau preferred to treat the episode as closed, and this month the French foreign minister responded with the clear statement that his government would not meddle in internal Canadian affairs.

Now that the rubble of this old quarrel is cleared, promising areas of cooperation can be seen by both sides. One obvious area is research into energy production. Canada is rich in resources and France in research skills—and Canada would be happy to dilute its dependence on the expertise of its hungry American neighbors.

Trudeau told the press that plans had been agreed upon for joint uranium mining in Canada and that a French-designed uranium enrichment plant may be built in the James Bay region. Canada would also like to increase its exports to the continental members of the EEC beyond the present 6 per cent of total Canadian exports, again as a counterweight (in Trudeau's own words) to its overwhelming 70 per cent dependence on the United States market.

One internal Canadian matter that Trudeau was glad to discuss in Paris was his government's effort to make the Canadian civil service more bilingual and thus more attractive to French Canadians. But he did not hide his personal dislike of the Quebec government's new language legislation, which restricts the choice most parents have about the language in which their children will receive schooling, forcing many into the French system.

In an interview with Le Monde he said that the law's supporters "want to build walls to protect themselves, Maginot lines. This is a view of military and political strategy I don't agree with." Even General De Gaulle might have appreciated the metaphor.

Things Dixon Talked About

10 YEARS AGO

In observance of National Book Week, the Dixon Public Library is displaying approximately 200 new books in the library's children's department.

The Dixon Police Department today is decorating the National Guard Armory and making final preparations for the annual Policeman's Ball, to be held Saturday beginning at 9 p.m.

Tuesday night's Dixon Travel Club program given by Daniel Moats, Lincoln Elementary School teacher, included an illustrated review of a summer Hawaiian tour with a group of 150 travelers.

25 YEARS AGO

Dixon's new memorial arch on Galena Avenue between Second and Third Streets will be formally dedicated Friday, Armistice Day. All patriotic organizations of the city have been invited by the committee from Dixon Post No. 12, American Legion, to participate in the parade, program and dedication.

Last-minute arrangements are being made by the Garden Department of the Dixon Woman's Club for their bus trip to Chicago. The bus will leave the Chamber of Commerce at 6:30 a.m. Wednesday, Nov. 9.

50 YEARS AGO

The Dixon Dodge's football team will motor to Woodstock Sunday to meet the town team from that city.

Husking corn is the order of the day throughout Lee County. While there are a good many farmers who have not started to crib their corn, the majority of them are in the field.

All precincts in Lee County had completed turning in their returns at Tuesday's election late yesterday and the board completed a canvass of the poll books shortly before noon today.

Waste as American as apple pie

By TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON (NEA)— When I was an Army Lieutenant, assigned one day to the rifle range, my platoon ended the training exercise with thousands of pounds of leftover ammunition. I ordered it loaded on the trucks to be returned to stock, but my sergeant begged a reconsideration.

"If we take it back," he said, "we'll have to inventory it, that means paper work and that means late hours. Let's just shoot it up." And so we did, several hundred dollars worth, bang-bang, into a soil bank behind the targets.

No telling how many millions of billions of rounds have been similarly wasted by other idiot lieutenants and sergeants, but assuredly the number is large. One of the lessons of service duty is that conservation is a pain in the butt. Extravagance, on the other hand, is encouraged with rewards by the system.

And so it is also in the society at large. To some measure anyway. The nation has enjoyed prosperity for so long, prosperity meaning the rapid turnover of market goods, that frugality has taken on a comical connotation.

Indeed, so insistent is the social leadership concerning waste, it has developed the mechanics of built-in obsolescence; it is far less expensive in the long run, as auto salesmen find joy in explaining, to purchase a car every two years and forego the need to shell out for repairs on "older" models.

Now it's painfully apparent the hens of our immoderation have come home to roost. Suddenly, with shortages everywhere, conservation is the vogue. Gerald Ford reminds us that many nations of the world could grow fat off our garbage alone. Yet for all the emergency emphasis, the thousands of prudent suggestions mailed to the White House, the revelation by the lady of one of our administrators that she too is "rubbing soap bars to teeny-weensy pieces," the effort remains blocked by national habit and policy.

Banks, as example, are forced by U.S. law to thump the thrifty and pay the wastrels. If a citizen takes out a $1,000 loan, he is allowed to deduct the interest on the debt from his tax return; if he puts $1,000 in savings, however, he must forfeit part of the interest earnings to the IRS. Is not the lesson here clear? You cannot promote prosperity, as Lincoln said, by discouraging thrift.

Other illustrations of such insanity abound. Power companies promote waste by reducing rates for bulk consumption. The man who insulates his home to conserve fuel is socked with higher taxes on an improved dwelling. The single individual who eats less than the large economy size pays more for smaller quantities. Even retired people, who by their time of life deserve a rest from the ridiculous, are prevented from saving by a Social Security law which discourages them from earning enough outside money to sock some away.

The situation, bogged in a complex swamp of laws and traditions, could no doubt still be reversed. One thing that is needed, say concerned economists, is a public use structure which has as its just basis escalating cost for escalating consumption. Put simply: if a family sets out one bag of garbage for the scavengers weekly, it would not pay the same pick-up rate as the family which sets out three or four.

The proposal, a sliding scale system of selling and buying, is nothing new. Phone companies, as example, have long charged minimum rates for minimum use. Yet large segments of government and business have not gotten the message of rewarding thrift instead of waste. President Ford for one knows well that 146 congressmen have introduced legislation to reform savings and loan inconsistencies, yet he has refused them a blessing. So has Congress as a body, for that matter, which has an excessive waste pile of its own in the form of lost opportunities.

So here we are again, doing battle with ourselves. Our offense is critical need and our defense is entrenched custom. Neither will likely lay a glove on the other. The only loser, perhaps, will be wisdom.

Too many straws on the camel's back

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)— In physics, when a system becomes unbalanced through internal or external forces and an eccentricity or pronounced wobble begins to develop, it is usually a sign the system will break down unless remedies are applied.

Our election system is becoming so erratic it now threatens an eventual breakdown in government.

Item. Statistics indicate growing numbers of voters are deserting the Democratic and Republican parties. But in most races, independents have no part in choosing candidates. Thus, the party base by which nominees are chosen is becoming smaller, convincing many of us none of the men running represent us or our views.

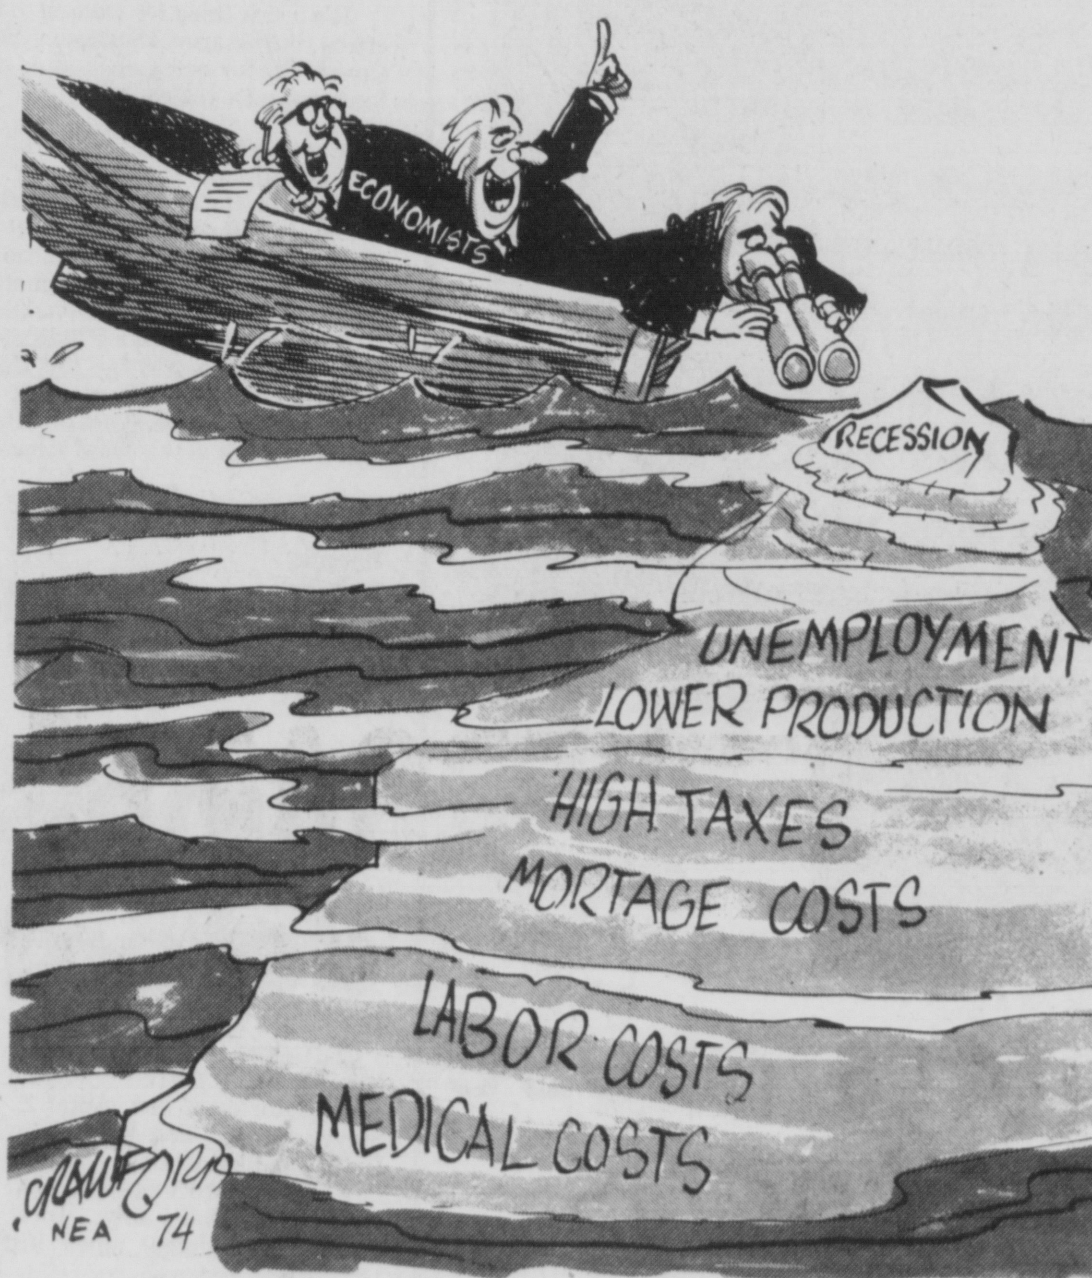

Item. There is evidence small contributions are becoming less important in political campaigns for national office, publicity to the contrary notwithstanding. Incumbents place increasing reliance on donations by special interest groups, further eroding public confidence.

Item. Activist groups labeling themselves public interest but political in everything but name, talk with authority, and wrap themselves self-righteously in the role of judge and jury, but refuse to accept the responsibility of putting up men and women for office. They claim to be above dirty struggle. But the purity of bystanders is meaningless; we need good men and women as candidates. The irresponsibility of these self-styled "pure" organizations is frequently enormous, as evidenced by a recent press conference organized by one of the more famous. The statements made were, in every respect, the self-serving type familiar to every reporter who has attended political rallies. If the newsmen present had been listening to Defense Secretary James Schlesinger or Secretary of State Henry Kissinger they would have harshly attacked the intriguing mathematics and the clear omissions in the political analysis presented. But because this was a public interest group allegedly free of bias, most reporters present nodded their heads in mesmerized agreement, questioning nothing that was said.

The growth of these "nonpolitical" "nonpartisan" groups is resulting in a proliferation of hatchet jobs falsely labeled as research in the public interest. Though these organizations have no public ties with any political party most are obsessed with one ideology or another and are therefore clearly as partisan, in their own way, as Republicans and Democrats.

Item. Increasing numbers of men in public life are being attacked with terrible one-sided persistence. No personal details are spared. Virtues and strengths are ignored. Every mole and defect, imagined or real, is described, frequently with unbelievable distortion. Half truths are reported vigorously—with explanations catching up weeks later. This trend, which began well before Watergate, will convince honorable men and women considering whether to run for office that their reputations will end up in shreds once they throw their hats into the ring. It is essential that we be informed of conflicts of interest and of wrongdoing by candidates and office holders, but based on the stories now circulating about candidates, we seem to be not after truth, but smear.

The Great Discovery

Recession starts to feed on self

WASHINGTON (LENS)— Although the Ford Administration has tried to pretend that the United States is not in a recession, it clearly is, as the Secretary of the Treasury has been forced to admit.

America's real gross domestic product declined for the third successive quarter in July-September, dropping this time at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 2.9 per cent. The quarter's output of goods and services was 3 per cent down from the peak in the closing months of last year.

The downturn has lasted longer than any other since the recession of 1960-61, and now seems to be beginning to feed on itself.

This autumn's main horrors are the slump in housebuilding and a sharp slowdown in stockbuilding, but no major part of the economy appears to be swimming against the tide.

Business spending on plant and equipment actually dropped slightly in real terms in the July-September quarter; and order books for capital goods have shortened, although optimists say that there are still big backlogs.

Personal consumption, little changed in the third quarter from the previous three months, was lower than a year earlier despite reduced savings. With one out of every two American citizens apparently believing they are in for a real depression, nobody is rushing to the shops. Already there are bargains everywhere in color television sets and home appliances (though not home freezers), but the canny say "wait another six months."

Business failures are no longer confined to housebuilders. Some retailers are already in trouble. Despite the slight easing in short-term interest rates, bankers are writing up their contingencies for losses on bad loans. Some banks forecast a sizeable drop in corporate profits, perhaps as much as 15 per cent, for next year. And all this, before making any allowance for a coal strike.

If President Ford's new economic program, announced earlier last month, is enacted in full, it will do nothing to prevent the continuing downturn: it might stimulate capital spending, but it would hold back consumer spending.

Luckily, it seems likely that Congress will reject the tax increases, so the program in practice may be slightly restimulating. But by closing his eyes Mr. Ford will not send the slump away.

It is a slump that may send America into beggar-my-neighbor policies by mistake. Although the news of the 1.2 per cent rise in America's cost of living in September sent a shiver round Wall Street last week, the implied 14 per cent annual rate of inflation is still slower than that in any other major industrial country except Germany.

But if growth is braked harder in America than elsewhere, which is a distinct possibility, its overseas trading accounts will presumably improve. One American bank has just predicted that even the current quarter might see America's non-oil trade surplus stabilizing at an annual rate of some $15 billion.

This would mean that the rest of the world must run a non-oil trade deficit of $15 billion, on top of the huge oil deficit it cannot finance. That is not something the rest of the world could live with in 1975.

Stalling increases only hurts more

Add to the lexicon of lament inspired by inflation and the energy crisis the term "regulatory lag."

This is the delay or gap between the date that a utility files an application for a rate change and the date that the change is approved by a state's public utility commission. The gap, according to a survey of 31 states just completed by Electrical World magazine, averages nine months to a year.

In Arizona, however, one case began in 1970 and wasn't decided until 404 days later, in 1972. In Ohio, one application has been pending since May, 1972. Hearings began only in February of this year.

Hit by rising costs like everybody else, the nation's utilities are increasingly citing the problem of "regulatory lag" as a key element in the troubles they are having raising investment capital.

Most consumers, of course, are just as happy to see an increase in their electric or gas bills postponed as long as possible. But according to one electric utility spokesman, Alvan W. Vogtle Jr., president of The Southern Company, the real victims of regulatory lag are consumers, more than the utilities.

Unduly long delay means deteriorating service and a cutback in construction of new generating facilities, he points out. Thus it is the consumer who finds his future energy needs unmet who will suffer in the end.

All the while, Vogtle adds, inflation—particularly the "double-digit" inflation the country is currently experiencing—adds to operating expenses. Thus when a rate increase does become effective, utilities are already at the point where the additional revenues are not enough.

This has given rise to a phenomenon called "pancaking." This occurs—and it is occurring more and more frequently—when a utility finds it necessary to apply for another general rate increase even before a previous application has been processed.

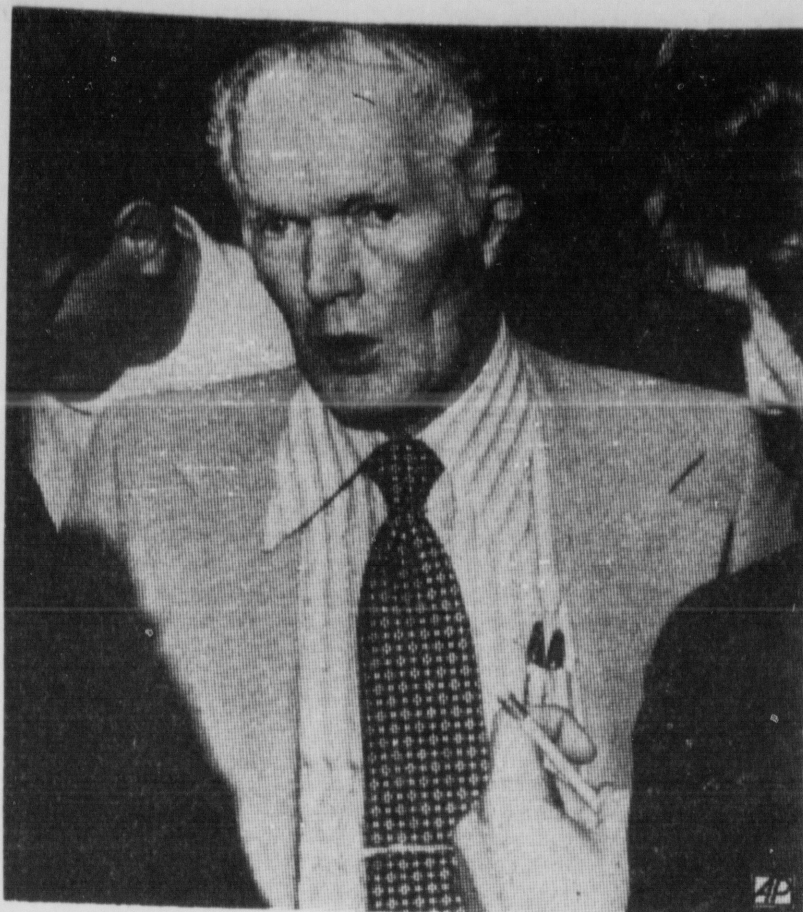

As a result, the regulatory commissions in some states are being swamped by pyramiding paperwork. As a result, not only is there administrative chaos but uncertainty about the utilities' real needs in the minds of consumers, who inevitably feel that they are the ones being "pancaked."

Understaffing is, in fact, cited as the chief cause of regulatory lag in the first place. In Pennsylvania, for example, the number of specialists on the public utility commission has remained unchanged while the number of rate cases has tripled in the past four or five years.

In Nevada, there is a statutory 180-day period to process rate applications, after which requests are automatically in force. In Kentucky, a statutory limit of 10 months to process applications is in effect. In Delaware, a utility can collect a higher rate 60 days after filing application and hold the additional revenues in bond until a decision is reached.

There wouldn't be this problem if gas or electric or telephone service could be sold on the open market where competition would establish the going rate. It is because of the nature of the products or services they provide that the nation's utilities must be monopolies, albeit legal, regulated ones.

Cranston, McGovern lead campaign spenders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Alan Cranston clung to a slim lead today over Sen. George McGovern for the distinction of running the most expensive Senate campaign of the year, with both men's spending topping $1 million.

A tabulation of recent campaign spending reports also shows that former astronaut John Glenn, running for the Senate in Ohio, topped the $1-million mark by the start of today's balloting.

The public-interest group Common Cause prepared the tabulation from the most recent wave of campaign spending reports, which piled up over the weekend and which cover the period up until 12 days ago — Oct. 24.

The Common Cause tally shows Cranston, a Democrat seeking re-election over fairly light opposition in California, leading with $1.27 million raised and $1.11 million spent.

McGovern trails only slightly behind with $1.10 million raised and $1.03 million spent. McGovern failed to carry his home state of South Dakota as the Democratic nominee for president two years ago, and this year faces a challenge for re-election to the Senate from a former prisoner of war, Leo Thorsness.

McGovern's spending is about double that of Thorsness' and amounts to about $1.67 for every man, woman and child in his thinly populated state.

Environmentalists, businessmen unable to bridge gap

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Businessmen are not by instinct ecologists, but neither are they totally insensitive to the arguments of the environmentalists and others who claim industrial society is in deadly conflict with nature.

The distance between the two is seldom bridged, however, because neither speaks the language of the other. David Brower, president of Friends of the Earth, believes the attempt is worthwhile.

Business believes in efficiency, he observes, and so do the ecologists. Both believe in conserving, avoiding waste, recycling where possible. They have a mutual interest in long-range planning.

The radical difference seems to be in emphasis. The industrialist measures efficiency and productivity in terms of the greatest return for the least investment. The ecologist measures efficiency in terms of obtaining the greatest use from the environment with the least amount of damage.

To an ecologist, Brower comments, "inflation is running out of something."

Brower fears the current rate of population growth leads to disaster if unchecked. His fear is great enough, he states, for him to willingly forego the pleasures of being a grandfather, although not without anguish.

Brower believes also, as almost everyone believes today, that energy must be saved, but he isn't convinced the world understands what it means.

The sun, he says, "puts into the earth in a few days as much energy as is contained in our fossil fuels." Nevertheless, architects continue to fight the sun and the wind. "We must learn to live and work with them," he states.

When Brower tells business it must practice staunch conservatism, he seems to reflect the credo of business itself. Efficiency must be paramount, he states. "If you have to waste to stay in business, get out of the business."

He believes the world's economies must learn to develop mass transit because it is energy-efficient. Yes, it would cut auto production and jobs, he agrees, but he foresees a vastly greater number of workers in maintenance. This would be so, he continues, because we must eliminate planned obsolescence. Cars must be made to last longer. Indeed, all products must be produced with longevity in mind, and then kept in repair — for efficiency's sake.

Transportation isn't the only offender, Brower says. "Slow down the building of housing that becomes quickly obsolete. Learn from other nations and build houses to last — houses that need little paint or air conditioning."

Brower isn't impressed by the enormous productivity of American farms, arguing they are inefficient in terms of energy usage. He claims we use five times more energy in wet rice agriculture than we get out of it.

Moreover, he observes that intense use of soil eventually depletes it, polluting the water in the process and leading to deserts. Inevitably, he claims, it leads to higher food prices.

The food situation would appear to baffle the ecologists as much as it does the technologists who advocate intensive agriculture by means of huge applications of energy, including fossil energy to run tractors.

Brower recognizes the urgent dietary needs of the world and believes the world's people should seek protein from more grains and less meat — relying less on the waste production mechanism of animals. But massive grain production, at least as now understood, would seem to require intensive usage of energy.

Brower asks why the energy producers rely on expensive, depletable liquid propane gas and all but ignore the replenishable methanol fuel — liquid sunshine, he calls it — available from commercial forests.

Our lands must be more intelligently used, he states, explaining that we must cease paving over "class 1" soil for parking lots and building housing on the fertile, renewable flood plains — and then demanding protective dams.

Is the public listening to the ecology argument? "The audiences are not as large as before," Brower concedes, adding his opinion that such a "frenetic pace" couldn't be maintained anyway.

"But I feel people are voting that way and will support corporate and government leadership that steers forward," he concludes. People recognize, he says, that our management, science and technology can do better.

Monier-Kaecker wedding vows

Miss Judy Lynn Monier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Monier, Rt. 1, Walnut, and Ronald Eugene Kaecker, son of Mrs. Darlene Schafer, rural Rock Falls and Eugene Kaecker, Harmon, exchanged marriage vows on Oct. 26 in the Evangelical Covenant Church, Princeton.

The Rev. John Weborg, pastor of the church, officiated at the 7:30 p.m. ceremony. Mrs. John Weborg, Princeton provided organ accompaniment for vocal selections by Mrs. Eric Forman, Glen Ellyn.

Vases in fall shades of chrysanthemums and pompons decorated at altar of the church and greens and fall pompons encircled a single candle on the altar. Aisle candelabras with white satin bows and greens decorated the sanctuary of the church.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a floor-length gown of white polyantha with a V-mandarin neckline and sheer bishop sleeves with medallion lace appliques accenting the dress. Venise lace applied the high rise bodice and the chapel length train of the full circular skirt. The bride's finger-tip veil was edged in matching lace and was held by a lace Juliet headpiece. The bride carried a cascade arrangement of white roses, white pompons, orange roses and baby's breath.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Judd Rutledge, Walnut, was attired in a grass green polyester jersey knit gown with a tucked bodice and a full A-line skirt. A long-sleeved tailored jacket accented the halter gown. She carried a cascade of chrysanthemums, pompons in fall shades and dried baby's breath with gold velvet streamers. She wore a headpiece of pompons and baby's breath.

Mrs. Steve Monier, Ohio, and Mrs. Gary Monier, Walnut, both sisters-in-law of the bride, served as bridesmaids. Their Nile green dresses were styled identically to that of the matron of honor. They carried cascading bouquets of chrysanthemums, pompons and dried baby's breath, and their headpieces consisted of pompons and baby's breath. Serving as best man was Judd Rutledge, Walnut; groomsmen were Jerry Jones, Walnut and David Guither, Carbondale. Steve Monier, Ohio and Gary Monier, Walnut, brothers of the bride, and Bill Kaecker, Ohio, and Gerald Kaecker, Rock Falls, the bridegroom's brother, ushered wedding guests.

Shaun Swartz, Dixon, participated as ring bearer and Miss Debbie Miller was the ceremonial flower girl. She was attired in a Nile green dress styled identically to the bridesmaids. She carried a basket filled with rose petals. She wore pompons in her hair as a headpiece.

A reception in the church vestry was held immediately following the ceremony. Miss Herma Anderson, Princeton and Mrs. Denton Swartz, Dixon were in charge of the coffee service and punch bowl. Miss Marylin Anderson, Geneseo and Miss Jill Anderson, Macomb were in charge of cutting the wedding cake. Miss Cindy Anderson was in charge of registering the wedding guests. Mrs. Barry Hansen, Miss Judy Jones, and Miss Cindy Pritchard, Walnut assisted at the gift table. Miss Phyllis Anderson, Miss Carolyn Anderson, Miss Deb Anderson, Miss Lori Anderson, Miss Tammy Anderson served as waitresses at the reception.

Since their return from a wedding trip to Wisconsin, the newlyweds will be residing at Rt. 2, Box 35, Harmon.

The new Mrs. Kaecker is a graduate of Walnut High School and the Sterling School of Beauty Culture. She operates The Lady Bug Beauty Shoppe in Walnut. Her husband, a graduate of Walnut High School, completed two years with the United States Army. He is presently engaged in farming in the Harmon area.

Educating teens for parenthood

(Note: Today's column is written by Joanne)

We can no longer rely on "instincts" to produce adequate mothers and fathers and healthy children. Our child abuse statistics, which show that more children die at the hands of their own parents than from any other disease, should be enough to convince us.

In the days of larger families and mothers working within the home, children had an opportunity to learn about parenting. "In today's world," states Cornell University Professor of Human Development Urie Bronfenbrenner, "children are deprived not only of parents but of adults in general. The resulting vacuum is filled by the television screen and the age-segregated peer group."

How many 14-year-olds even talk to a 4-year-old, unless they happen to meet one across their own breakfast table? Adolescents, particularly male adolescents, who will be called upon to take a greater share in parenting with so many mothers working, have lost contact with children.

Yet the number of teen-age parents is surprisingly high. One of every 10 school-age girls is a mother, which also indicates an enormous number of school-age fathers. Few teen-age parents have any preparation for their responsibilities. Where will they learn how to deal lovingly and intelligently with their children?

In high school—that's where. Five hundred high schools across the country have already included an education for parenthood program in which teen-agers observe and work directly with preschool children, while learning about child development. Most of these schools follow a model curriculum called "Exploring Childhood" which includes booklets, films, posters, records and filmstrips for students and guidance materials for teachers and parents.

Some financial assistance is available to schools which wish to set up such programs, but the federal funding is not sufficient to cover the entire cost. Many schools have simply used existing faculty and facilities in more imaginative ways.

While education for parenthood programs vary, two elements are essential. 1) The teens must work directly with the children—using a nursery school, day care center, kindergarten, as a field site. With the proper supervision teens can learn to be of enormous assistance, while they learn about kids. 2) Male students must participate. Half of the people who affect the growth and future of children are male. Judging from the thousands of teen-age boys who have already participated, the experience is invaluable. It's even prevented some boys from dropping out of school.

To find out how to initiate this vital program in your school, write: Stanley Kruger, Education for Parenthood Project, Office of Education, 400 Maryland Avenue, S.W., Room 2089-G, Washington, D.C. 20002.

Parenting can be taught in the schools, as thousands of teens and their parents can now testify. This is fast becoming the only hope for young people to learn about children before they have their own.

Polly's Pointers

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — A natural bristle hair brush may do wonders for the hair but they certainly can be offensive to sensitive nasal passages. Mine is 100 per cent natural bristles and smells awful. I have washed it in any number of things (shampoo, dish liquids and a mild ammonia solution) but none worked. I am hesitant about using anything too strong for fear of damaging the bristles. I hope someone has a suggestion. — MRS. M. D.

DEAR POLLY — Eggs are so expensive I think they should be handled with more care. My Pet Peeve is that I bring a carton home from the market and they look fine on top. When I start to remove them there is nearly always one and sometimes two cracked ones that are stuck to the carton bottom. I cannot remove them without completely breaking them. Furthermore, I do not like to use cracked eggs. I feel I am paying for 12 eggs and usually wind up with only 10 or 11. — Lydia.

DEAR POLLY — and Helen — We have a foam mattress and use a large piece of corduroy between it and the springs. It doesn't slide or move now. — J.K. G.

DEAR POLLY — When unraveling a knitted or crocheted item to reuse the yarn I wind it around a wide-mouthed bottle. This helps straighten it out. The smaller lengths needed for sewing together or whatever are just tossed inside the bottle so all are together. — PAM.

DEAR POLLY — Around the first of every month many people receive a brown envelope with a Social Security check, veteran's pension, etc., and many times people, especially the elderly, come to the bank with that easily recognized envelope in hand and also a bank book. I cringe thinking how they are potential victims for assault. Why not tear up that brown envelope before leaving home and put the bank book and an unendorsed check in a white envelope? Carry this in a large purse if possible but do not be obvious about its containing a check. Some of the people who do this could never fight back enough to come out even with an assailant. — MRS. J. G. M.

DEAR POLLY — I would like to share a vitamin and energy conserving pointer. When I bake potatoes they are scrubbed, buttered and wrapped in foil. I always bake some extra ones to have on hand for potato salad, etc., that I will plan for the next day. The oven heat does double duty. Baking rather than boiling conserves vitamins as well. — MARY W.

DEAR GIRLS — We could all save on heat by planning oven dinners when baking potatoes. Cooking at the same time could be a meat loaf, vegetable casserole and a baked dessert rather than one today and another tomorrow. — POLLY.

You will receive a dollar if Polly uses your favorite home-making idea. Pet Peeve, Polly's Problem or solution to a problem. Write Polly in care of Dixon Evening Telegraph. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Circle 1 to meet

Circle I of St. Paul Lutheran Church will meet Thursday at the church in the Fireside Room. Hostesses for the 2 p.m. meeting will be Mrs. Charles Ports and Mrs. Ivan Wakeley.

Daughters of the American Revolution hold meeting

The Dixon Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution met Saturday at the Loveland Community House when Regent, Miss Nan McGinnis, presided.

Mrs. Albert Triebel Jr., second division director NSDAR, Rockford, was introduced as a guest by Mrs. Sherman Shaw. A scripture reading and prayer were given by Chaplain Miss Ruth Morris. The pledge of allegiance to the flag was led by the Flag Chairman, Mrs. Dan Fierheller, Polo. The national anthem was sung and accompanied by Mrs. W. E. Gronberg. The President General's message was read by Miss Alice Richardson and the National Defense report was given by Miss Kathryn Wright.

The program director, Mrs. Sherman Shaw, introduced the program for the afternoon. Mrs. W. E. Gronberg spoke on "Women of the American Revolution" and she told about the exploits of 12 separate women, including Mollie Pitcher. Their names never became well known as national heroine figures, yet their actions probably changed our history; in many cases, thanks to their resourcefulness and courage under stress as America, as a nation, progressed.

The tea table was decorated with a centerpiece in fall colors, with Miss Kathryn Wright presiding at the refreshment table. Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. C. A. Thomas, Mrs. James Angell, Mrs. Areta Gracey, Mrs. Jean Stinson, Mrs. Charles H. Berg, Miss Myrtle Swartz, and Mrs. George Lindquist.

The next meeting is planned for Dec. 7 when Mrs. Frances Manon will unfold "Christmas Handicrafts."

South analysis East's play

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South Analyzed the lead as fourth best—probably from the queen. West liked to make attacking leads. He Counted seven winners—three in spades, two hearts and one each in diamonds and clubs.

"How can I make nine tricks?" he asked himself. "I had better lead a diamond from dummy and finesse the ten spot successfully."

Twenty-eight points figures to be enough for game, but this time things did not look too good. Still he lead the diamond from dummy. East promptly produced the ace and South stopped to think. "Why did East hop up?"

One good reason would be that the ace was a singleton. In that case South would have no trouble getting two diamond tricks but the third one just wouldn't be there.

"What else could it be showing?" The doubleton ace-jack was the mental answer.

Now South made the play to give him his contract against that second combination. He dropped his 10 of diamonds!

East led back a heart. South won in dummy; led a diamond to his king and finessed successfully against West's nine of diamonds after East produced that important jack. 6 (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Dear Ann by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: In 1964 I went to a psychiatrist. After two visits I decided I didn't need any more therapy. My conscience had been bothering me because of something I had done. Two talking sessions gave me the relief and peace of mind I needed. I really spilled my guts, and this is what I am worried about.

Both sessions were taped. The psychiatrist said he lies to refer to "earlier sessions" if necessary. This means a secretary had to transcribe those tapes and they are probably on file in his office.

How can I protect myself against possible blackmail by an unscrupulous person who might get his or her hands on them? I am deeply concerned and need your advice.—Vulnerable

Dear V.: If you saw the psychiatrist only twice, in 1964, the records were probably tossed out long ago. However, since this is preying on your mind, call the doctor and ask for his assurance that your records have been disposed of. Or get his word that he will destroy them at once.

Dear Ann Landers: What do you think of giving birthday parties for 1-year-olds? I've been to a few lately, and there have been as many as 25 guests present.

The babies have no idea what is going on. The mothers open the gifts and "Oo-oo" and "Ah!" The babies would rather play with the ribbons and wrappings.

I feel these parties are for the parents and are a sheer waste of time and money for everyone else. What do you say?—Turned Off

Dear Turned: Of course the parties are for the parents. Who else? The child realizes people are around, but he doesn't know why and couldn't care less.

If parents want to celebrate the baby's birthday, I see nothing wrong with it. Someone usually has a camera. The pictures are nice to have later—so "Baby" can see what he looked like, smearing the frosting all over Aunt Ethel's navy blue dress.

Dear Ann Landers: I disagree with your reply to "Sloppy in Omaha." As a professional home economist, I have these comments:

A kitchen is a workshop. In the best designed workshops, tools are kept where they are most accessible, not out of sight. The pots and pans most frequently used should be hanging from a rack in the open. They can be very attractive and it's an added incentive to keep them bright and shiny.

Now about the "dishrags," as you call them. (I was taught to say "dishcloth" and I teach my students the same. Rags are usually used on floors, but please, not on dishes.) I see nothing wrong with keeping a dishcloth draped over the faucet. It will be sweeter-smelling than if it is stuck in a closed cabinet. And, of course, since it will be "on display," it must be kept clean.

A kitchen with totally "cleared decks" has as much personality as a living room that looks like a furniture-store window.—Efficient in Texas

Dear Tex: You may be right about calling them dishcloths instead of dishrags but as for the "cleared deck," I disagree. To me, the hallmark of a good housekeeper is one whose kitchen has nothing in sight except the appliances and canisters that are being used—and with the dishcloth out of sight. # Upland hunting season to begin Saturday

By The Associated Press
The upland game season begins in Illinois Saturday and while rabbit and quail populations remain about the same as last year, hunters are going to find far fewer pheasants.

The prediction is a surprise, because breeding population surveys late last winter indicated the pheasant crop this year would be as good as last.

But Jim Moak, chief upland game biologist for the state Department of Conservation, said that more recent brood counts showed many hens with only one to three chicks or no chicks at all.

A contributing factor was probably heavy spring rains that interrupted breeding.

"It was apparent there was very little success in reproduction," Moak said.

"It indicates we are approaching the pheasant season with prospects of a 50 per cent reduction in population compared with last year.

The department estimates that last year Illinois hunters killed more than a million pheasants.

Despite the lower number of birds this year, the bag limit has not changed—three daily with six in possession.

This is because only roosters can be shot and there will be more than enough roosters around for breeding next spring.

"In captivity a male can handle 50 or 60 hens," said Jim Lockart, head of the department's division of wild life resources. "We generally under-harvest male pheasants in Illinois."

East central Illinois has been considered the state's prime pheasant range, but there are now increased populations near Mason City, Manito, Jacksonville, Springfield, Decatur and LaSalle, Moak said.

In contrast, the best hunting for rabbit is southern and western Illinois. Last year's rabbit kill was about 2.2 million, far below the average for the past 15 years, but rabbit remains the most popular game for upland hunters.

In Illinois, 60 to 75 per cent of people who hunt go after rabbit, and this year they'll still have plenty to shoot at.

Moak said that overall prospects for rabbit are about the same as last year and the bag limit remains at four daily with eight in possession.

Township Road 43, Hayes Road

The public hearing will be held at 7:00 P.M., December 5, 1974, at the Steward Elementary School Gymnasium in Steward. Also included as a portion of the public hearing will be a discussion of the effect on local citizenry by shifting the interchange which was previously on Elva Road to Perry Road. The change is a result of further analysis of traffic patterns and anticipated growth in Steward and the surrounding area.

The hearing will be conducted by personnel of the Illinois Department of Transportation. Interested citizens from the affected area will be heard concerning the proposed road closures and interchange revision. Citizens may also submit written statements and other exhibits in place of, or in addition to, oral statements at the public hearing. Such written statement may be submitted to the District Engineer, 819 Depot Avenue, Dixon, Illinois 61021 no later than December 16, 1974. Representatives of the Illinois Department of Transportation, Division of Highways, District 2 Office, will be available to discuss effects to individual properties.

The Division of Highways Relocation Assistance Program, which will be available to anyone displaced as a direct result of the construction of this project, will also be discussed at this hearing. It is the policy of the Illinois Department of Transportation that no family, or individual, occupying a dwelling can be displaced by the Department's highway construction projects unless and until adequate replacement housing is made available to, or provided for, all of those to be displaced by the project.

The Illinois Department of Transportation, Division of Highways, has prepared an analysis of the project's effect on the environment and circulated an Environmental Impact Statement to various Federal, State, and Local agencies for their review. As a result of the analysis, it has been determined that this project does not significantly detract from the environment.

In addition to the above mentioned statement, plans, sketches and other information pertinent to the determination of road closures and interchange revision for this project are available for public perusal at the Illinois Department of Transportation District Office, 819 Depot Avenue, Dixon, Illinois 61021.

What happens if voters reject tax increase?

(Editor's Note: This is the final article in a series by Dr. Donald Skidmore, Amboy school superintendent, on the $1.3-million referendum which will be voted upon Nov. 16.)

In this final article of the series that I have written regarding the junior high school referendum, I wish to comment on a question which has been frequently asked in recent meetings. The question, in its various forms, is simply: "What will happen if the junior high school referendum fails?"

It is a logical question which is difficult to answer primarily due to the fact that the future is difficult, if not impossible, to predict. Nevertheless, there are certain probable events on which I can speculate.

The most obvious thing which will happen should the junior high school referendum fail is that none of the major renovation work will be done. That is due to the fact that the district does not have nor will have funds to do the projected work. If it already possessed the funds or could accumulate the money it would not be asking for the approval of additional money for this purpose.

This means that an electrical service which is now 52 years old and already 12 years beyond its life expectancy will continue to serve the building. This is similarly true of the plumbing system as well as the mechanical control system for the heating plant. It means roof and window frame problems will continue unsolved. It means that your children will have to continue to receive their basic education in small, poorly lit, uncomfortable classrooms.

Money that would normally be used for maintaining other buildings will possibly have to be used to solve emergency problems at the junior high just so we could continue to occupy the building. The implications of this distasteful approach to building maintenance borders on disaster. Other major building problems and expensive solutions could be the outgrowth of a maintenance program which is inadequately scheduled and funded.

Goodwill expresses gratitude for help

The 468 handicapped people who have received vocational rehabilitation help through Abilities Center Goodwill Industries in 1973 are joining in gratitude to the people of Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin this month for contributions, time and money which makes the program possible.

According to community relations reports, the public has contributed 626 tons of clothing, 75,000 cartons of miscellany and 7,000 pieces of furniture, appliances and other large items so far in 1974. The repair of the articles for resale makes the Goodwill program of learning and earning for the handicapped possible.

Special mention should be made for the help given Abilities Center by the Boy Scouts of America who collected over 200 tons of material so far in 1974. Special thanks to volunteers, trailer firms and the many others who provided transportation. School children, church workers and others donated over 35,000 hours of time in collection drives.

Goodwill is also thankful for the work provided by the business and industrial community on a contract basis so that more employment and training can be provided for the handicapped people.

Abilities Center Goodwill Industries is the oldest and largest work evaluation center in Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin using the Singer Graflex testing battery technique.

The agency has served over 5500 handicapped men and women in 38 years. It is locally controlled and operated and serves only the area disabled.

In addition to job training, the agency also referred 274 handicapped people during the year to other agencies for schooling and training. Annually from 50 to 75 people are placed in outside employment.

Watergate hands Demos huge gain

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nation unsettled by Republican scandal and burgeoning prices handed Democrats a much tighter grip on Congress and a near-record total of governorships in the mid-term election of 1974.

The majority party picked up at least four Senate seats, for a total of 62, and appeared headed for two-thirds control of the House. The Democrats had 289 Representatives, just one short of the so-called veto-proof mark, and were leading in five of seven races that were still too close to call in today's late counting.

Tabulations were also incomplete in some governors' races, but the likely outcome would give the Democrats four more state mansions for a total of 36 — the greatest number since their 1958 landslide.

But the GOP scored a major upset in populous Ohio, with 65-year-old James A. Rhodes barely squeaking by incumbent Gov. John J. Gilligan — who was regarded as many as a rising national star for the Democrats.

Rhodes, a former governor, had conceded defeat during the night, and the final margin was so tight that a recount was almost certain.

At the White House, press secretary Ron Nessen declared today that "No one thinks this was a referendum on the President... It will not affect the President's decision that he probably will run for election in 1976."

The Democrats got several new faces to watch as potential candidates in the presidential campaign two years away: Govs.-elect Hugh L. Carey of New York and Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California, and Sens.-elect John H. Glenn Jr. of Ohio and Dale Bumpers of Ar-kanas. And the losers included a half-dozen Republicans who had been among the loudest and longest defenders of former President Richard M. Nixon: four members of the House Judiciary Committee who stood by Nixon during last summer's hearings and Reps. Dan H. Rostenkowski of Illinois, Earl F. Landgrebe of Indiana, and George W. Brown of California.

Though the Democratic gains Tuesday were a bit below some pre-election forecasts and in line with the normal off-year pattern of opposition party success, Democratic spokesmen hailed their victory as a signal to supplant Ford's economic policies with measures of their own.

"This is not just a victory, this is a mandate," declared Speaker Carl B. Albert of Oklahoma, scheduled to preside over the first House in a decade with a two-thirds Democratic margin, theoretically the "veto-proof" body Ford warned might block his programs.

Other Democrats cocked their eyes towards 1976 and the presidential contest they hope will restore them to White House control.

If Ford doesn't change his economic programs "we will win the White House in 1976," declared Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen of Texas, a likely Democratic presidential contender. And Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington said he might unveil his White House bid before year's end.

"We're seeing the rebuilding of the old Democratic coalition which served the Democratic party and the nation so well for so many years," declared Democratic Chairman Robert S. Strauss.

At the White House, President Ford watched the returns on television and conceded his party had lost.

"I have accepted the verdict," he said. "Those who lose often come back to win another day."

With final returns still being tabulated in a number of states, this was the picture:

Senate — Democrats picked up five seats but were trailing in one they now hold, giving them a likely margin of 62 to 38 in the new Senate compared to their 58 to 42 lead in the current one. House — Democrats had picked up at least 43 seats from Republicans while losing five to GOP candidates. They had elected 281 House members and led in 12 other races, for a possible total of 293, 45 more than the current House in which they hold a 248 to 187 majority. The margin is the biggest since the 295-140 majority after the Lyndon B. Johnson landslide of 1964.

Governors — Democrats had captured another from the Republicans, lost one to the GOP and lost another to an independent candidate in Maine. They led for another GOP spot, while Republicans led in three current Democratic states, for an indicated breakdown of 36 Democrats, 13 Republicans and one independent, surpassing the 35 to 14 margin after 1958 but short of the record 39 governors elected in 1936.

As expected, the Democrats captured Senate seats in Florida, Kentucky, Colorado and North Dakota.

In Florida, former Secretary of State Richard Stone, a moderate Democrat, defeated conservative GOP businessman Jack Eckerd for the seat of Republican Sen. Edward J. Gurney, under federal indictment for bribery, conspiracy and perjury.

In Kentucky, Democratic Gov. Wendell Ford scored heavily in rural areas and held his own in Louisville to unseat freshman GOP Sen. Marlow W. Cook.

In Colorado, Gary Hart, the 36-year-old 1972 campaign manager for Democratic presidential nominee George S. McGovern, swamped two-term Republican Sen. Peter H. Dominick.

In Vermont, a 34-year-old Democrat, Patrick Leahy, surprised Republican Rep. Richard Mallary in the race to succeed retiring Sen. George D. Aiken. He became the first Democrat ever elected to the Senate from that once rock-ribbed Republican state.

And in North Dakota, former Gov. William L. Guy narrowly defeated veteran GOP Sen. Milton Young.

In Oklahoma, former Rep. Ed Edmondson was closing in on front-running Republican Sen. Henry Bellmon.

In Nevada, former Republican Gov. Paul A. Laxalt edged ahead of Democratic Lt. Gov. Harry Reid for the seat of retiring Democrat Alan Bible.

Elsewhere, the incumbents generally won. The two biggest names among the Democratic senators, George McGovern of South Dakota and Birch Bayh of Indiana, captured third terms.

And Bumpers and Glenn won easily the Arkansas and Ohio Senate seats now held by Democrats J. W. Fulbright and Howard Metzenbaum, their victims in bitter primary battles last May.

In Kansas, scene of one of the nation's most bitter Senate races, former Republican National Chairman Robert Dole battled back to edge Democratic Rep. William Roy.

JOHN GLENN

And in Utah, Republican Mayor Jake Garn of Salt Lake City defeated Democratic Rep. Wayne Owens, a member of the House Judiciary Committee, for the seat of retiring Republican Wallace Bennett.

Other new Senators included Rep. John C. Culver in Iowa and former Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan of North Carolina, both Democrats.

In the House, the biggest name casualties were on the House Judiciary Committee — four Republicans who had defended Nixon, Reps. Charles W. Sandman Jr. and Joseph J. Maraziti of New Jersey; David W. Dennis of Indiana; Wiley Wayne of Iowa, and a fifth who voted against the former President, freshman Harold V. Froehlich of Wisconsin.

Of the five Democrats who unseated Republicans in special elections last spring, all won again except Rep. Tom Luken of Ohio, edged in his rematch with Republican Willis Gradison in the Cincinnati district.

In Ford's home district in Grand Rapids, Mich., which he represented for a quarter century before Nixon picked him for the vice presidency, Democratic Rep. Richard VanderVeen won again despite Ford's visit last week.

Republican losses tended to come in clusters — five in Indiana, four in New Jersey, four in New York, two in Wisconsin and two in Virginia, including suburban Washington Rep. Joel Broyhill, a 22-year-veteran.

In California, the GOP was losing in four races.

On the Democratic side, there were single losses in Florida, Louisiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and South Dakota.

But in Arkansas, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., the embattled chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, was easily re-elected over Republican Judy Petty, despite the adverse publicity of last month's incident in which police stopped his speeding car, found the congressman intoxicated and a former stripper jumped out and into Washington's Tidal Basin.

In the governor's races, Democrats scored expected victories over Republicans in a number of states, including New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Colorado, Oregon, Tennessee and Wyoming.

And in California, Brown, the 36-year-old son of the state's last Democratic governor, became the youngest governor in over a century by defeating Republican Houston Flournoy.

But Democrat Sander Levin's second bid to unseat Republican Gov. William G. Milliken again fell short in Michigan, and Republican James Edwards was elected the first GOP governor in a century in South Carolina as the result of controversy surrounding the disqualification of the Democratic primary winner.

In Maine, meanwhile, independent James B. Longley surprised Democrat George Mitchell and Republican James Erwin.

In New York, Carey ran up an 800,000-vote margin over Republican Gov. Malcolm Wilson, who became governor when Nelson A. Rockefeller resigned last December, to recapture the state for his party for the first time in 16 years.

In Connecticut, Rep. Ella T. Grasso became the first woman to win a governorship without succeeding her husband.

Incumbents re-elected included Democrats George C. Wallace in Alabama, Reubin Askew in Florida, Milton Shapp in Pennsylvania, Wendell Anderson in Minnesota, Marvin Mandel in Maryland, Patrick J. Lucey in Wisconsin, Philip W. Noel in Rhode Island and Republicans Robert Ray of Iowa and Meldrim Thomson of New Hampshire.

Political history is made Face of state politics may be changed

By WILLIAM C. WERTZ
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Overnight, political history has been made and the face of Illinois politics altered for perhaps years to come.

The stunning Democratic victory in Tuesday's election has given the party control of the General Assembly for the first time since the Depression era of the 1930s.

With Daniel Walker in the Governor's Mansion and Democratic appointees holding a majority on the state Supreme Court, the party now has control of all three branches of government.

Walker contended throughout the campaign that removal of Republican "obstructionists" from the General Assembly would open the way for swift passage of major new legislative proposals.

It remains to be seen however, whether the new Democratic majority can avoid the intra-party squabbling that has marred previous sessions. Disputes between legislative supporters of the governor and lawmakers loyal to Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley have been common in the past, but an uneasy truce between the two leaders has appeared to exist in recent months.

One test of whether the Walker and Daley forces can remain compatible will come in January, when Democrats in the House will elect a new speaker. A battle for the job appears to be shaping up between House Minority Leader Clyde Chouteau of Anna, who has backed numerous Walker proposals, and Rep. Gerald Shea of Chicago, Daley's chief spokesman in the House.

But regardless of whether Walker is able to exert his strength by influencing the selection of a new Speaker, the governor demonstrated through Tuesday's election that he is a force to be reckoned with on the campaign trail. Democratic candidates who enjoyed the benefit of Walker's whirlwind style of person-to-person campaigning won big. It can be argued that some of these candidates would have won anyway, particularly given the broad coattails of Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson and State Treasurer Alan Dixon, who won reelection by monstrous margins. But Walker's dynamic campaign appearances and financial help may have tipped the scales in marginal races.

Tuesday's elections also threw a monkey wrench into Republican plans for the future. The future of State Republican Chairman Don Adams of Springfield seems tenuous, given the GOP losses at all levels.

And House Speaker W. Robert Blair's stunning defeat in the 42nd District appears certain to have nipped in the bud his reported ambition to be governor. By contrast, the future looks bright for Atty. Gen. William J. Scott, a top vote-getter for the GOP in 1972. Scott and Comptroller George Lindberg, another popular Republican, were able to watch their party's dismal showing from the sidelines this year and may be called upon to pick up the pieces in 1976.

Democrats

Hardy and Republican Prescott Bloom were fighting it out for the Senate seat in the 46th District being vacated by incumbent Republican Hudson Sours.

Republicans currently hold one-vote margins in the 59-member Senate and the 177-member House. Twenty Senate seats and all of the House seats were contested in Tuesday's election.

Democratic legislative candidates throughout the state were assisted by the overwhelming victories of Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson and State Treasurer Alan Dixon at the top of the ticket.

In addition, Gov. Daniel Walker campaigned personally on behalf of the party candidates and siphoned money to many of them from his Illinois Democratic Fund.

Walker campaigned especially hard against Republican legislators he branded as "obstructionists" and said he needed Democrats in the General Assembly to help him cut rising state spending.

Another Democratic winner was Bill Morris of Waukegan, who defeated Sen. John Conolly, chairman of the Senate Transportation Committee.

Political strategists said Conolly and Blair both suffered because of their early support for the Regional Transportation Authority for metropolitan Chicago, which voters in their suburban districts rejected soundly in a referendum last March.

Democrat Robert T. Lane of Chicago Heights defeated Sen. Jack Walker, a Republican from Lansing who served one term as House Speaker in the late 1960s. Democrats staved off strong GOP attempts to unseat Sen. Kenneth Buzbee of Carbondale and Sen. Vivian Hickey of Rockford, appointed to serve the remaining months of the late Sen. Betty Anne Keegan's term.

Democrats said Joseph Pisciotte, a political science professor from the University of Illinois, had lost for the second consecutive time to incumbent Republican Stanley Weaver in the 52nd District, which includes Champaign.

In House races, Democrats sought to elect two party candidates in each district in which they currently have only one representative.

Victors included incumbent Democrat James Londrigan and former Walker aide Douglas Kane in the 50th District, where incumbent Republican Joseph Gibbs had retired, and incumbent Democrat Charles Keller and William O'Daniel in the 54th District, where Republican Max Shurtz retired after filling out the term of the late Rep. Ben Blades.

In other House races, Democrat Clarence Darrow of Rock Island defeated Robert Williams, also of Rock Island, in the 36th District, where incumbent Republican Peter Papas retired, and Democrat Guy Subbelfield defeated incumbent Republican Frank "Pat" North in the 34th District, which includes Rockford.

Democrats said they had staved off a Republican challenge in the 9th District and re-elected incumbents Leland Rayson of Tinley Park and Richard Kelly of East Hazel Crest.

Incompatibility?

Ford's marriage with congress may end in 'quickie' divorce

WASHINGTON (AP) — That good marriage President Ford proposed to Congress may be headed for a quick divorce. The election returns point to incompatibility as the likely grounds.

The voters have confronted the Republican President with the most heavily Democratic Congress since Lyndon B. Johnson's landslide election a decade ago.

And while Ford said he is confident he can work with the new Congress to deal with inflation and the economic slump, all the signs signal a heightened struggle over economic measures.

Against the background of Tuesday's election outcome, it is likely to begin almost immediately, when the current 93rd Congress returns for its lame duck session beginning Nov. 18.

For one thing, any slim prospect that Congress would act this year to give Ford the middle and upper income tax surcharge he proposed as an anti-inflation measure appears to be gone now. And given the shape of the new Congress that will convene in January, if Ford ever gets the surtax through, it likely will be altered so as to apply only to high income brackets.

The new Congress will be more aggressively liberal, more likely to challenge Ford on foreign and defense spending, more attuned to domestic programs.

House Speaker Carl Albert of Oklahoma, an old friend of Ford's but a Democrat first, said his party had a mandate, not just a victory.

Albert said the Democrats now can move with more confidence on such programs as national health insurance, tax reform and public service employment.

He also said the White House had focused on inflation while neglecting the problem of recession. "We believe we can meet both problems simultaneously," Albert said.

Ford said there was no argument that inflation was the No. 1 issue.

"The mandate of the electorate places upon the next Congress a full measure of responsibility for resolving this problem," he said. "I will work with them wholeheartedly."

But other politicians put inflation squarely in the partisan arena. Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who is virtually certain to seek the White House in 1976, and who said the election outcome will push up his timetable for an announcement, argued that the voters are fed up and want action now.

Another Democratic prospect, Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen of Texas, said Ford had better change some of his economic policies. "If he doesn't we will win the White House in 1976," Bentsen said. The economic argument can only escalate as the maneuvering begins for presidential campaign position in 1976.

If the economy was the overt issue, Watergate was the undertow for Republicans in the Tuesday balloting. Republican National Chairman Mary Louise Smith said the backlash of scandal led to GOP defeats.

"I think this election is probably a final chapter of those difficult times," she said.

The Democratic House gains compare with a post-war average in off-year elections of a 30-seat loss from the party of the President. In the Senate, the President's party has lost an average of four seats.

All told, the Democrats won 276 House seats, led for 15 more, for a new total of up to 291 seats.

In the Senate, they picked up four seats and boosted their strength to at least 62.

GOP loses governorships in big states

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats ended the Republican era in the statehouses of New York and California, the nation's two most populous states, and picked up a half-dozen other governorships held by the GOP.

Tuesday's Democratic tide left the party in solid command of the nation's statehouses and with immeasurable influence over the machinery for choosing a president two years hence.

Californians elected Democrat Edmund G. Brown Jr. after eight years of the conservative Republican administration of Gov. Ronald Reagan. At 36, Brown becomes the state's youngest governor in 119 years. He whipped Houston Flournoy, the state controller and a former college professor.

In New York, Democratic Rep. Hugh L. Carey ended 16 years of Republican reign at the statehouse by solidly defeating Gov. Malcolm Wilson, who finished out the term of Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Ohio's seessaw race between incumbent Democrat John J. Gilligan and his GOP predecessor James A. Rhodes dangled in doubt with almost all the votes counted.

The lead in Kansas teetered between Democrat Vern Miller, the state attorney general, and Republican State Senate president Robert F. Bennett.

Democrats went into the election with a 32 to 18 hold on the governorships and were emerging with their domination approaching 36 of the 50 states.

Democrats took over GOP-held statehouses in Colorado, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Oregon, Tennessee and Wyoming as well as in the two biggest states.

In the 10 states with half the nation's population and half the electoral votes for president, Democrats sealed their seats in eight and conceded Michigan to the GOP.

But the Republican candidate took the South Carolina statehouse for the first time in a century.

The governorship of Alaska, now held by a Democrat, was in limbo with leads swinging back and forth as the tabulation wound to an end.

The Arizona statehouse turned Democratic for the first time in eight years. Raul Castro, 58, a former envoy to Bolivia, won in his second bid for the office.

There was no doubt that GOP losses born of low scandal and high inflation washed through state capitals as well as the nation's capital.

The statehouse gains gave Democrats control over thousands of state patronage jobs and the machinery to raise money and votes for the party's 1976 presidential nominee.

By force of numbers, Democratic governors also gained influence in choosing the presidential candidate.

George C. Wallace overwhelmed his Republican challenger in Alabama with an 85 per cent victory margin for an unprecedented third term. "I do have plans" for 1976, he told an interviewer.

Florida Gov. Reubin Askew won re-election and a boost for his national aspirations with a solid margin over Republican Jerry Thomas, who was president of the state senate as a Democrat but switched parties two years ago.

The Democratic sweep led Ella T. Grasso into the Connecticut statehouse, the first woman ever to be elected a governor without following her husband into the office.

New York and California dominated the gubernatorial picture because of their size and influence and because in both cases, longtime Republican control came to an end.

A congressman from Brooklyn for 14 years, Carey, 55, upset the party organization candidate in the primary election. But he took no radical stands on the issues. He is Irish Catholic and a widower with 12 children.

Jerry Brown, son of former California Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, was born to politics, launched his own career by identifying himself with liberal causes, then solidified his party strength during three years as secretary of state.

Maine went its own way and rebuffed both major party candidates, electing political newcomer James B. Longley who ran as an independent and promised to cut the cost of government.

Longley, a 50-year-old insurance executive, described his victory as "a message that will be heard around the country." Of the 35 gubernatorial contests, Republicans clinched only three early victories but clung to hopes of three more as tabulation continued in tight races in Kansas, Ohio and Alaska.

Departing from the 100-year Democratic tradition, South Carolinians sent Republican James B. Edwards, 47, to the statehouse.

The loser was Jennings Bryan Ord, a veteran congressman who was defeated for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the primary balloting but got on the ticket after the party choice was ruled ineligible because he had not lived in the state long enough.

Michigan's incumbent Republican, William Milliken, won re-election despite last-minute allegations that his running-mate had been involved in improprieties. Milliken examined the charges and decided to keep James Damman on the ticket for lieutenant governor.

Protest slaughter by farmers

PILLAGER, Minn. (AP) — An estimated 150 central Minnesota farmers, angry at low livestock prices, have killed more than 300 cattle, hogs and sheep and dumped them into an open trench.

By the time the six-hour livestock kill was over Monday, farmer Virgil Barg of rural Motley, Minn., said 267 calves and heifers, 37 hogs and two sheep had been shot with pistols and rifles and kicked into the trench on the David Ondris farm about five miles east of Pillager.

The livestock kill was designed to dramatize the farmers' plight and to get action out of "the White House," Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz, the "middleman" or whoever is "squeezing the life out of rural America," as one farmer put it.

Asked what the government should do to improve conditions, Barg said, "As a starter, Earl Butz should be replaced as secretary of agriculture tomorrow morning. We also want to get the attention of the White House. We need a man in there that understands agriculture."

Ron Barg, 34, who farms with his brother, Virgil, echoed the frustrations of many of the other farmers at the kill.

"Without the farmer, the world's dead," said Barg. "We're only five per cent of the voting public... They (the government) are flooding the market with foreign imports. They let (Nelson) Rockefeller and Art Linkletter ship their cattle in to cut our throats."

Asked why the animals weren't given to charity, Barg said, "I've got four kids at home to feed. They're six years to three months and I need to pay doctor bills on them and they have to be clothed and fed and a house paid on them the same as anybody else. My girl broke her arm and it was in traction 13 days in St. Cloud and the bill was $1,600!"

The Bargs have a $110,000 mortgage on their 700 cattle and claim that at current prices the sale of the animals couldn't even pay off the mortgage.

One farmer said prices are so low that cattle rustlers, who usually grab one or two animals a year from most of the larger herds, are no trouble anymore.

William B. Boyd, who farms near Leader, displayed receipts showing his 36 head of cattle brought him an average of $97 at the West Fargo (N.D.) Stockyards last Friday — while the sale of 35 head last year brought an average of $311 per head.

"I hate to see this happen," said Perry Terwilliger, 49, who farms north of Pillager and brought three piglets to be slaughtered. "I don't like people to see this. I mean, I can get by, but what about the other guy and the little man who's trying to get started?"

Eagle Gives You Plain Talk

Back in younger days custards were very much a part of mealtime. Living on a farm we always had plenty of milk and eggs and Mother could satisfy a lot of appetites with a variety of boiled or baked custards.

Using the same principle as for baked custard, we have perfected a main course dish utilizing crabmeat, shrimp and cheese. On a comparative basis, if you use less expensive frozen snow crab and small shrimp, the dish is quite economical.

Thaw and drain a 6-ounce package of crabmeat and about a dozen small shrimp. Drain well. Shred crabmeat and cut shrimp in small pieces. Butter an 8-inch square casserole or baking dish. In the bottom place 2 slices of crustless white bread.

On top of the bread put the shrimp and crabmeat, mixed with  $\frac{1}{2}$  green sweet pepper, diced very fine. Season with salt and pepper. Top with  $\frac{1}{4}$  cup grated cheddar cheese. Beat together 2 eggs,  $1\frac{1}{2}$  cups milk,  $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon salt and a dash of cayenne.

Put egg and milk mixture over the seafood and top with another  $\frac{1}{4}$  cup grated cheddar. Put the casserole in a larger pan with about an inch of water. Preheat oven to 325 degrees and bake 20 to 30 minutes. Test for doneness by inserting a knife which will come out clean if dish is done. Serve hot. Basic recipe is enough for 4 but can be doubled.

Here is an interesting and different way to prepare cauliflower which I think you will like. Wash 1 medium-sized head, trim and break into flowerets. In a bowl put 2 well-beaten eggs. Add  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup sifted all-purpose flour and salt and pepper to taste. Combine  $\frac{1}{4}$  cup milk,  $\frac{1}{4}$  cup heavy cream, and 2 tablespoons melted butter. Add to flour mixture to make a batter. Dip flowerets into batter.

Fry a few at a time in hot olive (or good salad) oil. Don't crowd flowerets in the skillet. Serve these hot with a sprinkle of grated parmesan cheese.

Enough for 4.
COOKING TIP
Cornstarch should always be dissolved in cold, not hot, water and the mixture should be stirred vigorously until it is smooth.

Bowls line up foes

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Secrets are flying faster than rumors as the nation's college football bowls rush to line up post-season opponents.

Notre Dame reportedly will meet Alabama in the Orange Bowl in a rematch of last year's national championship battle. Nebraska and Florida will face each other in a Sugar Bowl clash while Penn State will take on the Southwestern Conference champion in the Cotton Bowl.

Miami of Ohio, which has a bid to the Tangerine Bowl, says its wants to meet Miami of Florida in the Dec. 21 clash.

And Oklahoma State will meet Pittsburgh and Tony Dorsett in the Sun Bowl Dec. 28.

Until this year, the first day a bowl invitation could be extended was the third Saturday in November. But the National Collegiate Athletic Association rescinded its rule when it found it impossible to enforce.

The bowls then agreed among themselves to wait until Nov. 16. But, as usual, early bids have apparently been offered and leaked.

The Orange Bowl collision between Notre Dame and Alabama will match the two teams that fought for the national championship in the Sugar Bowl last New Year's Eve when the Irish edged the Crimson Tide 24-23.

Notre Dame is ranked eighth with a 7-1 record while Alabama, 8-0, is third behind Ohio State and Oklahoma.

A Notre Dame spokesman said "no decision would be made before Nov. 16," although Frank Rentz, president of the Orange Bowl Committee, said official announcement of the Notre Dame-Alabama matchup could come Saturday following the Alabama-Louisiana State game.

Penn State Coach Joe Paterno said his team has voted to go to the Cotton Bowl against the winner of the Southwestern Conference — either Texas, Texas A&M or Baylor — but qualified his statement by saying the Nittany Lions would go "if" they are invited.

Unbeaten Oklahoma is banned from postseason play because of recruiting violations.

TOM NEVIUS, Dixon senior cross-country runner, wrapped up his high school career by finishing 43rd in the state meet in Peoria Saturday. Under the guiding eyes of head varsity coach Jerry Broers (middle) and assistant coach Tony Edgecomb, Nevius improved his 58th place in the sectional a year ago to 43rd in the state. "We did not worry about Tom in the state meet," the coaches agreed, "as he has proven what hard work and determination could do. He only ran one race all year that was not up to his standards but he was just coming back from illness at the time." Nevius was also praised for his leadership and teamwork displayed during the year. (Telegraph Photo)

Zion-Benton school board seeks a court injunction

By C. W. WOLFF
Associated Press Writer

ZION (AP)—The Zion-Benton School Board is seeking a court injunction to get its high school football team back into the state tournament.

The injunction, expected to be filed today in Circuit Court in Waukegan, also asks that a tournament game between Rockford East and Belvidere be stopped, the game was scheduled for tonight in Rockford.

The Zee-Bees were chosen Saturday by the Illinois High School Association as one of three schools at large to play in the tournament, the first of its kind in Illinois. They were scheduled to play Rockford East, a conference champion with 18 wins in a row, this afternoon.

But the IHSA discovered Monday Belvidere actually beat Zion-Benton by half a point in the complicated system for choosing the at-large tournament competitors.

The Zion-Benton School Board met Tuesday night to discuss the matter.

Donald Lonchar, board lawyer, said the injunction would be sought because "irreparable damage and injury has taken place because of this thing."

He said tickets had been sold and bus transportation arranged.

IHSA lawyer John P. Poust didn't see it as "irreparable damage."

"It was just a mistake which was cleared up before the game," he said. "You can't let every participant make the rules. That would be chaos."

He added that the point system probably will work smoother next year.

"It just seems kind of funny when someone is there as a guest has a complaint to voice," said Rockford East coach Bob Pellant. "They (Zion-Benton) didn't even qualify for a berth in this tournament! ... Then they dictated to us when we would play the game. They said they were a daylight team."

Rockford-East usually plays its games at night.

Pellant said he spent all weekend scouting the Zion-Benton team, since the two had never played together.

"Twenty-four hours ago we were geared to play Zion-Benton. Now we're geared for Belvidere, whom we beat earlier this year 27-0. ... It would be nice to know who we are playing ..."

"We just think we should have as much notice as anybody of who we're playing."

Lonchar said one proposal is for the Zee-Bees to play Belvidere and let the winner play Rockford East.

Pellant thinks this is wrong: "IHSA is the dictating body and whatever they say we have to go along with."

All three schools are in the class 4A division.

Marshall wins NL Young

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Marshall, the tireless relief pitcher who helped the Los Angeles Dodgers win their first pennant in eight years, was named the National League's Cy Young Award winner today.

Marshall collected 17 of 24 possible first-place votes to outscore teammate Andy Messersmith, 96 points to 66, and become the first relief pitcher in history to win the coveted prize.

The only other reliever to win a major award from the Baseball Writers Association of America was Jim Konstanty, who was the National League's Most Valuable Player during the "Whiz Kid" days of the Philadelphia Phillies in 1950.

The Dodgers took three of the first four places as Atlanta's Phil Niekro finished third with 15 points and Los Angeles' Don Sutton was fourth with 12.

Messersmith, along with Niekro the only 20-game winners in the National League this year, received five first-place votes. Niekro and Sutton had one each. Pitchers from the National League champion Dodgers thus gained 23 of the 24 first-place votes.

The remainder of the field included Al Hrabosky of St. Louis with nine points; Cincinnati's Jack Billingham, eight; Cincinnati's Don Gullett, five; Clay Carroll of Cincinnati, two, and Pittsburgh's Dave Giusti, Buzz Capra of Atlanta, and Lynn McGlothen of St. Louis, all one.

A total of 24 writers voted, two from each National League city, and the point total was decided on a basis of five for first place, three for second and one for third.

The best goes sour

By MIKE CUNIFF

If you are a professional sports fan enthusiast with interest centered on baseball, perhaps you have obtained a copy of the 1974 Baseball Guide published by The Sporting News. Take a minute, dig it out of your sports file and glance at the cover.

Notice anything special? Four faces; representations of Ron Bryant, Bobby Bonds, Jim Palmer and Reggie Jackson. The reason for the quartet adorning the cover is the performances of each of the individuals during the 1973 baseball season.

Bryant was voted National League Pitcher of the Year while San Francisco Giant teammate Bonds was hailed as NL Player of the Year. Jackson of the Oakland A's was honored as AL Player and Palmer won laurels as Pitcher of the Year.

Bryant overcame a 3.53 earned run average to notch 24 victories in 36 decisions, with a Giant team that was 88-74 for a third place finish in the Western Division. The lefthander was the only 20-game winner in the National League and his 24 victories were the most by a Giant pitcher since Carl Hubbell's 26 in 1936.

Bonds narrowly missed becoming the first man in major-league history to hit 40 home runs and steal 40 bases in the same season. With 39 homers and 43 thefts, Bobby joined Willie Mays as the only players ever to accomplish the 30-30 feat twice. Bonds also achieved the 30-30 mark in 1969.

Bobby slammed 11 leadoff, first-inning homers to tie him with Eddie Yost for the most ever. He appeared in 160 contests, with 182 hits in 643 at bats for a .283 average. In addition to his 39 four-baggers, Bonds whacked 34 doubles and four triples and drove in 96 runs.

Palmer led the AL in earned run average with a skimpy 2.40 mark for 296 innings. The Baltimore Oriole righthander completed 19 of 37 starts to post 22 wins against nine losses for a winning percentage of .710.

He allowed only 225 hits in his 296 frames of work and hurled a half-dozen shutouts. Palmer struck out 158 and gave up 86 runs, 79 of which were earned. He wound up a 20-game winner for the fourth consecutive season.

Jackson cracked out 32 homers and drove in 117 runs to pace the league in both departments. Reggie batted 539 times, with 158 hits for 286 total bases. Included in the figures were 28 doubles and two triples. He also stole 22 bases in 30 tries and finished with a .293 batting average.

Bryant, Bonds, Palmer and Jackson—the four best players in the two leagues as determined by The Sporting News in 1973. The quartet was mentioned as "untouchable" when the trading markets opened.

The year 1974 dawned, Palmer was counted on to win his usual 20 or more games for the pennant-contending Orioles, Jackson to slam 30 homers and plate 100 teammates, Bonds to spark the offense and Bryant the pitching as the Giants tried to overcome the Cincinnati Reds in the NL West.

Sore arms plagued both Bryant and Palmer throughout the season. The former won three games while losing 15, while Palmer was also under the .500 mark with eight wins and a dozen losses. Jackson, hampered by a hamstring injury sustained in the '73 playoffs, belted 29 homers and drove in close to 100 runs.

Bonds saw his batting average slip to .256 with only 21 homers and 71 RBI's, in addition to 41 stolen bases. The drop-off accounted for the Bonds trade to the New York Yankees for Bobby Murcer on the opening day of inter-league dealing this fall.

Bryant and Palmer could be traded but few clubs would risk getting damaged goods in exchange for sound ball players. The Orioles would probably inflate Palmer's price anyway, figuring the righthander will rebound in '75. Bryant has only the one outstanding season, so his risk value is much greater.

Every manager is always on the lookout for more pitching help. The injuries to Bryant and Palmer explain why. A hurler can be counted on to win 20 games or so but a little twist, an off-balance toss or throwing on a cold day could mean his usefulness has been reduced substantially.

The Dixon fall sports banquet will be Thursday at 6:30 to honor members of the DHS baseball, football, cross-country and golf squads.

Excuses follow tie

By The Associated Press

Philadelphia's Bobby Clarke and New York's Garry Howatt exchanged blows on the ice and excuses afterwards Tuesday night following a raucous penalty-filled 4-4 tie.

"I got an elbow from him (Clarke) after the whistle," complained Howatt. "They always give cheap shots and the referees don't call it. I just tore into Clarke and I landed a couple of shots to the head."

"(Andre) Dupont and (Dave) Shultz are just goons," added Howatt.

"Do you think I'd elbow him at that stage of the game," retorted Clarke. "I've been around long enough not to take a penalty at that time with us leading. He grabbed me by the hair."

The Flyers held a 4-3 advantage with 1:13 to go when Howatt and Clarke tangled in front of the Flyers' net. Both benches emptied, both goalies left their nets and when officials finally cleared the gloves and sticks and mopped up the blood from the ice, five players — Clarke, Howatt, Philadelphia's Andre Dupont and goalie Bernie Parent and New York goalie Billy Smith — were assessed penalties.

Thus inspired, the Islanders sent a capacity crowd of 14,865 into a frenzy when Billy Harris took a pass from Ralph Stewart and rifled a 25-foot shot past Parent to tie it up.

"I guess Parent blew it," said Harris with a smile.

Elsewhere in the NHL, Buffalo and Boston tied 2-2, Pittsburgh beat Kansas City 5-3, Los Angeles edged St. Louis 4-3 and Vancouver shaded the New York Rangers 2-1.

The standoff kept the Islanders one point behind first-place Philadelphia in Division I. Barber and Rick McLeish scored first-period goals for Philadelphia and Ed Westfall got one for New York. The Islanders went on top 3-2 after the second stanza on scores by Dave Lewis and Bob Nystrom but Terry Crisp and Leach connected in the final period to set the stage for Harris' goal.

Johnny Bucyk's 40-footer late in the final period lifted Boston into a tie with Buffalo. Gil Perreault and Craig Ramsay connected for the Sabres and Al Sims got the other Bruin goal.

Ron Schock's 25-footer snapped a third-period tie and carried Pittsburgh past Kansas City.

Bob Nevin scored his ninth goal of the season with just under five minutes to go to lead Los Angeles past St. Louis.

Area roundup

Dixon high school freshman football coach Bud Melvin has submitted the following statistics for the 1974 season. The "A" team notched two victories against seven losses while being outscored 213 to 72.

Wins of 30-14 over Princeton and 14-12 over Rock Falls were balanced by losses of 38-0 to LaSalle-Peru, 6-0 to Sterling, 44-0 by Rochelle, 14-6 by Newman, 26-6 to Geneseo, 25-0 by Boylan and 34-16 to Kewanee.

Due to the unavailability of a record keeper at the Kewanee game, the following statistics are for eight contests. Jeff Fane paced all the rushers with 490 yards in 115 carries for a 4.3 average. Fane scored five touchdowns and added a trio of two-point conversions to tally 36 points.

Brian Cox added 214 yards in 67 attempts for a 3.1 norm. Cox had one conversion run. Jim Mazrimas was the only other rusher over 100 yards with 133 in 26 chances for a 5.1 average. Mazrimas scored one touchdown rushing.

Brian Callow added 71 yards in 31 efforts while Tom Brevitt had a dozen in four carries. Scott Hamil tackled on 13 in a half dozen tries. Pat Kessel had nine yards in two carries while Andy Schumacher had a solitary attempt for eight yards. Joe Brady had five yards in four rushes.

Mike Swinton netted three yards in a dozen attempts and scored eight points on a touchdown and a conversion run. Scott Lefelman rounded out the ground troops with two carries for three yards. The team was 961 yards in 270 carries for a 3.6 average.

Swinton completed 16 of 67 passes for 207 yards. Mazrimas caught six of the aeriels for 76 yards and one conversion.

Callow and Smith snagged three apiece. Callow's grabs were for 42 yards and one touchdown while Smith collected 50 yards and a score.

Brevitt pulled in two passes for 25 yards while Hamil and Kurt Baker caught one each for seven yards. Baker's was for a touchdown.

The "B" team compiled a 6-0-2 record by downing LaSalle-Peru 6-0, Rochelle 6-0, Ashton 8-6 and 14-6, Princeton 18-0 and Rock Falls 18-0 in addition to ties of 6-6 with Sterling and 0-0 with Rockford Boylan.

Sauk readies for season opener

SAUK VALLEY—A squad of 11 players, including four returning lettermen, is preparing for the 1974-75 Sauk Valley Redmen season opener on the basketball court on Nov. 16.

The first contest will be against the Redmen college alumni at 7:30 p.m. in the Sauk Valley Gymnasium. The schedule calls for 23 games during the campaign as well as participation in the Kankakee Round Robin Tournament during the Thanksgiving holiday, the Highland Classic in Freeport during Christmas vacation and the sectional late in February.

Frank Palumbo, athletic director and basketball coach, has Tom Zinanni (Newman) and John Windham (Sterling), plus Terry Jenkins and Dave Webster (Polo) back from the '73-74 squad which compiled a 13-15 overall mark, including a 3-7 Arrowhead Conference ledger.

Palumbo is optimistic for the upcoming season even though the top three scorers from last year have graduated. Greg Schott averaged 24.43 points per game in 15 games, after missing part of the season with a broken hand.

Joe Salvatore hooped an average of 13.4 points while Gary Helms had a 14.6 norm. Windham connected on 158 of 403 field goal attempts and added 29 or 43 free throw tries to end the season with 345 points or a 12.3 average. Zinanni had a 7.1 norm with 201 total digits, based on 93 baskets and 15 charity tosses. Webster collected 69 points in limited action, while Jenkins accounted for 20.

Additions to the team are Randy Paisley from Dixon, Elmer Linboom, Mike Friedlein, Tim Granzow and Mike Stockwell from Sterling, Morrison's Steve Hook and Doug Mitchell from Tampico, Friedlein and Granzow will man the center slot while Mitchell, Webster, Zinanni, Windham and Stockwell are listed as forwards.

Paisley was a key figure in the 15-12 season record posted by the Dukes last year as the 5'8" backcourt player hit 41 of 124 field goal attempts and added 31 of 38 free throw efforts to end the season with 113 points in 24 games.

Chris Evert's rite of passage

NEW YORK (NEA)—It was inconceivable on that pleasant late summer afternoon that this 16-year-old girl, her blond hair caught in a white ribbon, wearing a demure white dress on her slim frame, and walking with head modestly bowed as the 15,000 fans in the West Side tennis club applauded her entrance—it was inconceivable then that Chrissie Evert could ever be booted.

Three years later she was booted.

Chrissie Evert is no longer the sweetheart of America. She is a competitor, a corporation, a pro.

Three years ago, she came out of relative obscurity to reach the semifinals of the U.S. Open at Forest Hills. And when she emerged onto center court to play the Queen Bee, Billie Jean King, she was easily the sentimental favorite.

She was still the amateur, a high school junior. She had a peculiar two-handed backhand. She did not rush the net, but patiently stayed back at the baseline and allowed her opponent to make the mistake. "Just darling," was a phrase not infrequently heard about her.

Something else was demonstrated by Chrissie under those evenly overcast skies that September afternoon three years ago. Chrissie had a killer instinct. She lost to Billie Jean, but everyone knew she'd be back.

Much has changed for her, now that she is 19. She is engaged to the redoubtable Jimmy Connors, the Wimbledon and U.S. Open champion. He is a fervent competitor, too, but much more demonstrative. He shouts, spits and flies into rages; sometimes he will even pull at his Page Boy haircut in anguish.

Chrissie, on the other hand, is brilliant in a mechanical way. She has in fact been labeled, "The Ice Maiden."

Once, she declined $50,000 in prize money to maintain her amateur standing. Now, she had earned over $150,000 in winning 56 straight matches this year, up to the Forest Hills semifinals.

As a corporate entity, she receives a reported $100,000 a year from a manufacturer of tennis clothes. The manufacturer owns racehorses, one named after Chris. It's a championship horse, too.

Perhaps all this success has soured some fans, for when, in a rare moment, she grimaced with her thin-lipped face at a questionable call in the quarterfinals at Forest Hills, she was booed.

Chrissie, who is now called "Chris," or "Evert," said, stung, "I've noticed that in the last few weeks the crowd roots for the underdog."

Or they boo those with whom they have become disenchanted, those who have unwittingly sullied the stuff of which the fans' dream has been fabricated.

Well she isn't marrying a Prince Valiant with overflowing modesty; she isn't the darling pacific creature she appears to be; she isn't above accepting prize money and forsaking college to travel around the world as a tennis pro. She is turning into a woman, full of all the foibles—and glories—that make up a human being.

She is an athlete of the first order, to be sure. She demonstrated this above all question in her U.S. Open semifinal match this year against Evonne Goolagong, again at center court in Forest Hills. Chris had lost the first set 6-0, and was losing in the second (of best of three) 4-3. Goolagong serving, when rain postponed the match. It rained the next day. Now, on a sunny Sunday noon, the pair met again. With her careful, cool presence, Evert came back tenaciously to win the second set, 7-6.

In the third set, the fans began slowly to cheer her pluck. Evert the corporation, the betrayer of lame dreams, was deservingly again of their admiration—if not their undying love, as in days of romantic yore.

In the shade of the marquee, Pancho Segura, the bronze-skinned, white-haired old tennis great, said, "Chris is such a tough competitor, you can tell because she is so patient." Goolagong was tough today, too. Four times she had Chris at match point, four times Evert wriggled out. "Evonne didn't lose those points," said Segura, "Chris won them."

Evert did not win the fifth match point, however.

Chris came off the court, her blond pony tail in a white ribbon, her white dress spotless, her tan legs smooth with the glint of sweat—and she was warmly applauded, just as she had been after losing to Billie Jean King in the semifinals three years ago.

But that was when she was a mere girl of 16, a hundred or so years ago.

WFL haves take on have-nots

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

The World Football League, the ultimate equal opportunity employer, has gone through 18 weeks of its 20-week season already, and the only teams that have been eliminated from the playoffs are the ones who have ceased operation.

Half of the league's 10 active teams — Southern California, Memphis, Florida, Birmingham and Charlotte — have clinched playoff spots and the other five are still fighting it out for the remaining three berths. And, as luck would have it, the five haves take on the five have-nots in this week's action.

Southern California visits the Hawaiians, Birmingham hosts Philadelphia and Charlotte is at Shreveport tonight while Memphis entertains Chicago and Florida hosts Portland Thursday night.

The Hawaiians, 7-11 but revived with the acquisition of quarterback Randy Johnson, can virtually clinch a playoff spot by upsetting the Southern California Sun. Johnson has been aiming most of his passes at Tim Delaney, the WFL's leading receiver.

The Sun, 13-5, has a passing game of its own with rookie Tony Adams doing most of the throwing. Adams leads the league with 254 completions in 461 attempts for 3,646 yards and 22 touchdowns.

Birmingham, 13-5, will probably start George Mira at quarterback but rookie Matt Reed will be available for relief. Reed came off the bench to lead the Americans past Florida last week. Al Jenkins, averaging a remarkable 21 yards a reception, provides Birmingham with a long-range threat.

Philadelphia's King Corcoran is second to Adams among WFL passers and is coming off a strong showing — 20 completions in 34 attempts against Chicago. The Bell is 8-10.

Charlotte, 10-8, has lost three of its past four games and will start rookie Gary Danielson in place of the injured Tom Sherman and the ineffective Brian Dowling at quarterback.

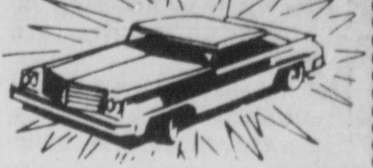

Veteran fullback Jim Nance is the top rusher for Shreveport, 6-11-1, with 1,073 yards. D.C. Nobles and David Mays share the quarterbacking.

Memphis, 15-3, boasts the WFL's top scorer, tight end Ed Marshall. Marshall has collected 121 points, most of them on touchdown passes from John Huarte. J.J. Jennings, who ran for 107 yards last week against the Hawaiians, leads the ground attack.

Chicago, 7-11, has lost nine straight games since losing Virgil Carter, the league's top passer, Mark Keilar, the league's top rusher, and James Scott, the league's top receiver, to injuries. Bubba Wyche will start at quarterback.

Knicks win by 13

By The Associated Press
The Houston Rockets misfired. The New York Knicks just fired.

The result was a 106-93 victory for New York in the National Basketball Association Tuesday night.

"We had a great effort tonight and we had to have it to win," said New York Coach Red Holzman. "The Rockets have a very talented team."

Bill Bradley scored 30 points and Earl Monroe clicked for 28, including 20 in the second half that gave the Knicks enough fuel to burn up the Rockets.

"We're trying to prepare some new guys," said Holzman, whose team has lost some starters from last year, "but until then, we're fortunate that we have some veterans who can help us."

In the night's only other NBA game, the Kansas City-Omaha Kings ripped the New Orleans Jazz 115-97. In the only American Basketball Association game, the Denver Rockets buried the Utah Stars 145-101.

The Knicks led from the start and allowed the Rockets only a brief lead early in the second quarter. Bradley's two jump shots and a free throw at the end of the period gave the Knicks a 52-45 edge at intermission and then Monroe's hot shooting stopped the Rockets in the second half.

Henry Bibby, who has been playing for injured Walt Frazier, added 21 points to the New York attack. He played 48 minutes for the first time in his NBA career.

Nate Archibald scored 30 points and Jimmy Walker hit for 25 to pace Kansas City-Omaha past hapless New Orleans, which lost for the ninth straight time this year without a victory. The Kings led only 46-45 at the half, but then Archibald scored 16 points to push the Kings into an insurmountable lead.

Pete Maravich led New Orleans with 26 points, while Neal Walk scored 23 points and collected 22 rebounds.

Ralph Simpson connected on 14 straight field goals and finished with 32 points to pace Denver over Utah. Simpson also had seven assists to help the Rockets solidify their lead in the ABA's Western Division.

The 44-point victory set a Denver team record and also was the worst defeat in the history of the Utah Stars' franchise.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE B-687: Hal S., aged 25, is a Don Juan who has had numerous affairs with single, as well as married, women.

"Dr. Crane," he boasted, "I have read your column ever since I was a high school sophomore."

"And I have found out I'm in California that women advertise their desire to have a man seduce them!"

"Oh, they try to protect their ego afterwards by accusing the man of taking unfair advantage of them."

"But any experienced fellow can read the signs which they offer as enticement for male pursuit."

"Maybe your millions of women readers would profit by having some of their technique exposed."

"For example, when a woman enters a tavern or cocktail lounge alone, the smart male knows that she is 'on the make.'"

"And if any unsophisticated readers of your 'Worry Clinic' don't register to that phrase 'on the make,' I'll explain."

"It means the woman is hoping some man will sit down beside her and engage in conversation, after which she expects him to order her a second drink and soon make a pass at her."

"Later, she will try to disclaim any remote idea of such a thing as spending the night with her new boy friend, by saying he plied her with drinks till she didn't know what she was doing."

"Actually, every experienced man realizes that she knew all along what she was trying to accomplish!"

"And even at a neighborhood bridge party among married couples, the woman who starts smoking cigarettes usually signals her erotic dissatisfaction with her own husband and her availability for a clandestine affair.

"Oh, such wives will affect shocked indignation at having me publicize this cigarette gimmick."

"But any adroit male can seduce such a cigarette wife before the evening is over!"

"Dr. Crane, you are aware that male homosexuals also run up various signals of their availability for an affair with another man."

"Well, the modern woman who is eager for a new brand of what you term 'boudoir cheese-cake' likewise flashes her signals to all the men in the room.

"Another rather blatant 'come-on' gimmick is for a woman to start telling risqué stories in a mixed crowd."

"I'd bet anybody even money that such a female has already had sexual affairs with more men than her husband and is now fishing for new bed fellows."

"Often the inexperienced but romantically hungry college coeds will signal their desire for an erotic follow-up by rubbing their leg against that of a male companion at the bridge table, even though ostensibly by accident."

"And if she frequently lays her hand on his as she gestures, that is another come-on sign."

"She may also 'pick' at a man as by tickling his ribs or touching his hair or even pressing her cheek against his in dancing."

"Dr. Crane, I dare you to expose these sexual 'come-ons' of girls, for your women readers will howl to high heaven when they see my expose."

"But the females who scream the loudest against your 'Worry Clinic' are those whose pet corns you step on!"

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of the Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

ONE OF THE LARGEST advertisements ever painted greets passersby on Eighth Ave., New York, where eight painters spent 1,400 hours applying 125 gallons of paint to the side of a building covering nearly half an acre. The simulated cigarette pack, about 229,436 times larger than an actual pack, overlooks Times Square.

The Doctor Says:

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB— I have been subject to spastic colitis for some time. My new ailment is diverticulosis. What is the difference between the two ailments? What are the dangers that may occur suddenly or otherwise? What steps should be taken to balance the two ailments? Who should I see and what medicine should I take? What are the chances for recovery?

DEAR READER— Most specialists in gastroenterology today believe the two conditions may be related. Diverticulosis means small pockets on the colon. These pockets are caused by a rupture of the wall of the colon, like an innertube that has a weakened wall.

The sac-like pocket is a diverticulum. It is thought that diverticula develop because of increased pressure inside the colon. The pressure is caused by poor bowel function such as spastic colon.

There may be other factors involved, such as an inherently weak spot in the colon to begin with, before the pressure problems occur. The diverticulum is something like an appendix. It can be inflamed or ruptured giving the signs of appendicitis. It can have a small leak causing pain and discomfort. It can bleed, causing a sudden, serious loss of blood.

Often the diverticula may go unnoticed. The problem is quite common in people over 40. By age 50 about half of the population has diverticulosis, so you are not unique. Most of them have no symptoms.

Some people have abdominal pain and cramping that is confused with diverticulosis. These pains are often the underlying problem of spastic colon.

Treatment of both of these problems required development of proper bowel habits. You need quite a bit of help to do it right. For information you can write to me in care of the Dixon Evening Telegraph, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019 and ask for the two booklets, Spastic Colon and Diverticulosis. Send 50 cents for each booklet to cover costs.
